Four teenagers injured by electrical shocks

By JUNE M. HEYDT

A teenage boy was credited with saving the lives of two of his friends who were involved in an accident late Friday according to Douglas Williams, Bay St. Louis chief of police.

The two were moving a sailboat when it came in contact with a power line in the parking lot of the Bay Waveland Yacht Club, and two others tried to help, and they were also shocked, Williams said.

James Dorgan, of Mobile, Ala. grabbed a wooden stake out of the ground and lifted up a trailer that had fallen on the two teenagers after contact with the lines.

The boat's mast came in contact with the power line and sent electricity through the mast into the boat and through the trailer shocking the two teenagers.

Williams added, "That boy (Dorgan) probably saved their lives."

The teenagers were to be contestants in the 1983 Flying Scot Junior North American sailboat racing championship, hosted by Bay Waveland Yacht Club.

Ronald Bentz, 16, of Long Beach; John Adams, 14, and Mike Flynn 15, both of Daphne, Ala. and Kenneth Sigler, of Spanish Fort, Ala. were taken to Hancock General Hospital around 6:30 p.m. Friday with second and third degree burns on their feet, legs and arms, according to a hospital spokesman.

County schools headed toward financial ruin

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The director of the State Department of Education's Division of Finance told Hancock County School District officials Thursday night that poor business practices are heading the local system toward financial ruin.

Smith Sparks of the department said at a Thursday County School Board meeting that the district's annual budget expenditures have exceeded income for at least the last four to five years.

The district has financed high expenditures with cash carryovers from year to year, but those reserves will be virtually exhausted by the end of the 1983-84 year unless spending is reduced or new money sources arise, Sparks reported.

He speculated the excessive spending might have occurred more years ago, but said a malfunctioning microfilm machine at the Jackson department would not permit him to study older Hancock school budget documents.

"We do not recommend financing ongoing operations with cash carryover balances—it's poor business," Sparks stated.

The school board approved its 1983-84 fiscal year budget of some $4.6 million which is about $490,016 more than last year.

Sparks said unless new revenue sources are found the district will have to 'cut back expenses drastically' by some $250,000.

The district this year realized a cash carryover of $249,000, but by the end of the present fiscal year that reserve based on the approved budget will dwindle to $8,000, Sparks said.

He noted all but 10 percent of the budget expenditures for this year are already 'locked in' since personnel and service contracts have already been signed.

Sparks recommended the district formulate its 1984-85 budget no later than March, before signing teacher contracts, to allow a financial review by the state to insure enough funds are available to hire back all teachers.

The state official offered the board what he emphasized were 'options' and 'not recommendations' to either increase income or reduce expenditures.

The options he listed for increased income include:

—Requesting the County Board of Supervisors provide the district the

Election official outlines new precincts, lists polls

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Hancock County's election coordinator, in an effort to head off confusion among voters in the Aug. 2 Democratic Primary, is urging residents to become familiar with precinct boundary changes and polling place locations prior to election day.

Charles Gottschalk, Hancock Election Commission secretary and primary coordinator, says the election will be the first utilizing new county precinct and district boundaries recently approved by the U.S. Justice Department.

He also noted the primary will be the first relatively large state and local election to be conducted here using the county's voting machines.

Poll workers will explain to voters how to operate the machines which will include on an average a nine-page ballot, Gottschalk reports.

Gottschalk and Circuit Clerk and Registrar of Voters Jerry Heitzmann both complain Gulf Regional Planning Commission, the agency which drew the new precinct and district lines, failed to consult the County Election Commission or the clerk's office before finalizing the political boundaries.

The election coordinator says some boundaries have caused complications in organizing voting ballots and records for several precincts.

Jeff Taylor, GRPC Hancock project coordinator, reports the precinct lines in many cases were reshaped based on the new district boundaries in a relatively short time period of about one year to complete the project.

"My perception was that the election commission wasn't as active as it was supposed to be," Taylor says in explaining that former Circuit Clerk Henry Otis, primarily by himself, organized elections in the past for the county commission.

Taylor suggests after this year's elections that the election commission change boundaries of problem precincts and conduct a countywide voter re-registration based on the new lines.

"We were requested to do the work (redistricting) and we did it. We dealt with the election commission through the circuit clerk (Heitzmann)," the GRPC official says.

Heitzmann commends Gottschalk for organizing the primary election and says he is the only person in Hancock who could have possibly undertaken such a complicated task.

Hancock's 26 new precincts are formed from a former 24; 14 of those have altered boundaries; Pearlington Precinct is now in District Two; Diamondhead East and West is combined into one precinct; six new voting areas now exist, and the East and West Hancock Justice Court Districts split three northern county precincts.

PRECINCT BOUNDARIES

Gottschalk says out of District One's five precincts, two old ones have altered boundaries and one new voting area has been created.

Ansley, Lakeshore and Clermont Harbor Precincts remain the same, Arlington Precinct now includes Buccaneer State Park and the new

Cuevas heir questions Cat Island ownership

Compiled

By EDGAR H. PEREZ
Echo Managing Editor

A Gulfport descendant of the original holder of a Spanish Land Grant to Cat Island—designated last week as probable site of a private satellite launch facility—is attempting to reopen family claims to the Mississippi Sound barrier island.

Franklin J. Cuevas of Gulfport reports a meeting of the 'Juan de Cuevas Heirs Organization' is slated for 1:30 p.m. Saturday at Gulfport's West Side Community Center on US-90.

"Something great is going to happen at this meeting and it is a must for you to attend," Cuevas said in a newsletter to the organization's members.

"All heirs who have a claim on Cat Island—the Ladners and Ladniers, Cuevases and Quaves, Morans, Dedeauxs and any others interested are requested to attend this meeting," Cuevas urged.

Cuevas declined Friday to elaborate further on the meeting format or possible claims to the island.

Cuevas said anyone seeking further information on the meeting may call him in Gulfport at 863-0589.

The island's owner, Nathan Boddie of Gulfport, says a proposed satellite launching facility for his offshore property "has real merit" and may be a forerunner to other development on the island.

Dr. Ed Cake, a Gulf Coast environmentalist who has consistently opposed all development on Mississippi's five islands, says "if it is done correctly, with the right environmental constraints, I am not opposed to this type of development."

Preliminary plans to launch satellites from Cat Island, the western tip of which is about five miles south of Pass Christian, were announced Tuesday in Jackson by Gov. William Winter and former astronaut Donald K. (Deke) Slayton.

Slayton's Houston-based firm, Space Services Inc. of America, wants to buy or lease between 200 and 250 acres—about 10 percent of the island—to build a launch facility to propel commercial satellites into polar orbits. Slayton said data gathered from the satellites will be sold to oil companies, foreign governments engaged in oil exploration and other industrial users.

Slayton estimated that the $2 million facility would employ about 50 people in Mississippi. Each launch, he said, would cost about $8 million.

Winter offered state support for the project, and said the satellite port could

Helicopter used to find illegal plant cultivation

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Some 253 marijuana plants were confiscated from fields in the Fenton Community on Wednesday after being spotted from a Mississippi State Highway Patrol helicopter, according to Alvin Ladner, Hancock County investigator.

Ladner said, "The plants were four feet tall and scattered throughout the woods. They were spotted by David Brooks, Mississippi Highway Patrol investigator who was in a helicopter and led a ground crew to them via radio."

"No one was arrested, but we feel we know who the cultivators are and will be watching them. This is part of Governor William Winter's eradication program of domestic marijuana in our state," Ladner commented.

Ladner indicated the use of a helicopter is highly beneficial in the location of the illegally grown crops, even in heavily wooded areas.

Among those participating in the marijuana harvest were Ladner, Joe Price and Mickey Demoran, Mississippi Highway Patrol investigators.

They are listed in fair condition, the hospital spokesman said.

Kenneth Sigler, 15, of Spanish Fort, Ala. was taken to Hancock General and later transported to the burn unit of the University of South Alabama Medical Center at Mobile. He suffered second and third degree burns on his feet, legs and hip, he was listed in fair condition.

Dorgan also here for the race, said he was walking past when the accident happened, he grabbed a wooden post out of the ground and shoved it under the trailer lifting it high enough for two men to pull the boys out.

While Dorgan was holding the trailer up, Bentz tried to help by grabbing the steel tongue of the trailer to lift it, the second he touched the steel he was also shocked.

At the same time Adams had gone to the stern and tried pushing the boat down. He was also hit with the electrical shock.

Dorgan said he owes what he did to the Boy Scouts of America, because he learned from them what to do in this type of emergency situation.

He said he learned about using the wood in an electrical emergency. He checked the teenagers pulse, summoned an ambulance, and kept them calm until help arrived.

The young man reported he is one step away from being an eagle scout. The electricity was so strong that it singed the tires on the trailer under the boat.

Bay St. Louis police and fire departments, the Hancock County Sheriff's department and Mobile Medic responded with two units.

Several spectators at the scene commented on the speed of response by police, fire and ambulance service arrival at the accident.

Board of Health to draft plan on immunization

The Board of Trustees of State Institutions of Higher Learning has approved the employment of Environmental Protection Systems, Inc. of Jackson to conduct studies of asbestos containing materials on the campuses of five of the state's eight universities.

The studies, to be completed in November, 1983 are to include a survey of all facilities to identify asbestos containing materials and an assessment of related hazards, along with recommendations and cost estimates for corrective action.

Buildings committee chairman, Denton Rogers, indicated that the cost of the project could range from $20,000 to $30,000 per campus for Alcorn State University, Delta State University, Jackson State University, Mississippi University for Women and Mississippi Valley State University.

IMMUNIZATION

The Board instructed the professional staff to work with the university presidents and personnel from the State Board of Health in developing a plan of action to require all students seeking entrance to a public university to show proof of immunization against measles/Rubella beginning in the fall term of 1984.

Currently, such proof is only required of foreign students.

The move followed an appeal by Dr. Edward Thompson of the State Board of Health that all institutions of higher learning require that all students show proof of immunity from measles and Rubella. Thompson, citing outbreaks of measles at universities in several states, stated that persons born after 1956 "are significantly susceptible to measles."

Other actions taken by the Board of Trustees at the July meeting include approval of:

• Medical and dental education loans for 17 students totaling $372,000.

• Contracts with the Morgan Guarantee Trust Company of New York providing a $25,000,000 line of credit which will enable lenders in Mississippi to sell student loans to the Mississippi Higher Education Assistance Corporation.

The appointment of Dr. Dan Landis as dean of the College of Liberal Arts and professor of psychology at the University of Mississippi effective Feb. 1, 1984. Landis is now serving as chairman of the Psychology Department at Indiana University.

Correction

Sylvan Ladner, candidate for Hancock County sheriff, was inadvertently reported in the Sunday, July 17 issue of The Sea Coast Echo, as having resigned from his position as sheriff four years ago.

Ladner, in fact, completed his fourth term and declined to seek reelection due to ill health at that time.

In addition, the report on a Chamber of Commerce political forum failed to mention the candidate previously had served as a Bay St. Louis city commissioner from 1949 to 1955.

The Echo apologizes for the errors.

Court directs indicted former officials to acquire attorneys

By JUNE M. HEYDT

Arraignment proceedings for Woodrow Ladner and Louie Ladner who were indicted by the January Grand Jury on charges of fraudulently receiving $500 travel allowances while they served on the Hancock County school board, have been delayed.

The Ladners appeared before Circuit Court Judge Kosta Vlahos on Monday for their arraignments but were not accompanied by an attorney.

"We had hired Robert Drake, but he filed a motion on July 5 for withdrawal from the case because of a conflict of interest," Louie Ladner told the judge. "Drake is representing the entire school board in a civil matter pending in chancery court."

Vlahos said a trial possibly could have been set in two weeks if the men had appeared with an attorney for Monday's arraignment.

"It has been seven months since your indictments, on July 5 you had an attorney," Vlahos said. "This puts the court in the position of requiring that you get an attorney, so we can arraign you in this term. This shouldn't take you more than a week. You must report back to court Monday because we need to get this case going one way or another."

WEIGHT CONTROL

"Nova" reports some new findings about weight control and dieting that may have important applications for daily life in the documentary "Fat Chance in a Thin World" to be rebroadcast at 8 p.m., Tuesday, Aug. 2 on the Mississippi ETV Network. It was first seen on ETV in March.

The program reports that —most overweight people don't eat any more than thin people do, and many eat less; —repeated dieting may actually make an individual heavier;

—it's almost impossible for some people to get fat, while for others, it's almost impossible to get thin;

—the best approach to weight control for most people may have very little to do with watching what they eat.

"What's surprising," says producer Thea Chalow, "is that despite the intense preoccupation with thinness in our society and the steady stream of books on diet and weight loss, still so much important scientific knowledge has simply been ignored. All the pieces of the puzzle are not yet in place, but a tremendous amount of useful information has been missed."

The program will be rebroadcast at 1 p.m., Thursday, Aug. 4.

Cono Caranna. A District Attorney We Can Trust.

How much longer can our system work without trust?

We've already put up with it for too long. We stand by and watch as the federal government investigates our elected officials. We hear how special people get special deals. We see criminals plea-bargain their way back to the streets.

But now, we can do something about it. On August 2nd, we can take a stand against crime. We can vote for Cono Caranna.

Cono Caranna wants to restore honesty and integrity to the office of District Attorney. And as our next DA, he will.

As City Attorney, he's tried some of the toughest cases ever brought before the courts — and won. He's worked closely with law enforcement for 10 years. Now, he wants to use his experience to focus all levels of law enforcement on crime in our area.

He's seen first-hand the problems in the District Attorney's office. And he's ready to do something about them.

On August 2nd, let's vote to put trust back in our legal system. Let's elect Cono Caranna, District Attorney.

Library display includes rare canning jars

By JOE PILET

Several museum quality antiques are now on exhibit in the display case at the Bay St. Louis branch of the Hancock County Library System.

They were placed there through the courtesy of Glenn Green whose collection includes over 9,000 antique canning jars.

One set on display consists of six colored jars dating from 1858, manufactured in Pennsylvania and including a cobalt blue, milk glass, Carnival type glass, olive green, amber and black amethystine.

Green said: "Only 114 sets of these jars were made. They just didn't become popular among home canners who seemed to prefer clear glass jars to show off their canned produce. So, only a few of these jars are now in existence."

Green felt this a good month to display some of the canning jars, since at this time the farmer's market is selling quantities of produce for home canning.

"Canning," according to Green, "Has long been a method of preserving fresh food so that it may be eaten at a later time. Properly canned produce can be kept for long periods of time without spoiling."

Green also put on display a wire basket which cradled a canning jar to be placed in a kettle of boiling water.

When asked to evaluate his jar collection, Green said: "This collection is invaluable."

"I love old things," Green said, and added "You just don't find such craftsmanship on today's assembly lines."

Also in the display case are a set of rare door knobs and a glass minnow trap.

Green's hobby of collecting antiques started in the Cumberland Mountains of Tennessee about 17 years ago.

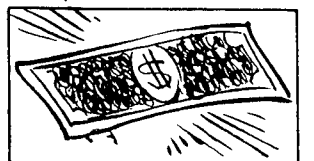

He is now one of the foremost collectors of antiques in the United States. The minnow trap was made in Oklahoma and is classified as VR (Very Rare).

Among Green's unique finds is an adjustable school desk and set which he purchased from a one-room school house in Coalmont, a mining town in the mountains of Tennessee.

In that one room pupils from grades one through eight were taught. The room contained 20 desks in all —each desk and set was "adjustable" to meet the needs of individual pupils.

The desks, made of oak wood and beautifully scrolled wrought iron, were firmly anchored to the floor.

Since the building was slated for demolition, the floor boards were sawed off and the help attract other high-technology industries to Mississippi.

Boddie, who has successfully lobbied several times in Washington, D.C., to keep his island free of government regulation, says the satellite port would not interfere with other projects and could be "a major attraction."

Boddie is still negotiating with Space Services for the property, but would not divulge the asking price.

The island, which until 1956 had a full-time caretaker, herds of cattle and several permanent buildings, now has only one house, which is owned by a New Orleans businessman. The island itself has been owned by the Boddie family since 1933.

Boddie said the port's construction would include a vehicle assembly plant, a viewing building, a launch pad and a control unit.

All assembly of the launch rocket will take place on the island, Boddie said.

Some dredging of channels running to the island and the construction of docking facilities also would be necessary, Boddie said.

He said Space Services, which in September launched a dummy payload into suborbital flight from Matagorda Island in Texas, already has plans for six launches.

The rocket engines to be used for the launches, Boddie said, are about 20 times less powerful than those used to launch satellites by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

He said the engines have been tested by NASA and will have only a small environmental impact. Boddie compared the sound made by the engines during blastoff to that of thunder.

If the launch facility becomes a reality, Boddie says other development may follow.

"From the information we have seen, the island is certainly capable of supporting a major recreational development," Boddie said. "It is a very stable area."

Boddie said, however, that "we are updating our plans for the island development constantly," adding that a soon-to-be-completed ecological study should help determine what kind of project will be pursued.

Development of Cat Island became likely in 1982 when much of it was excluded from the Coastal Barrier Resources Act, legislation that withdrew federal flood insurance from nearly 700 miles of beaches and islands along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts. Earlier, Boddie also was successful in keeping the island out of the Gulf Islands National Seashore, which includes the Mississippi island of Petit Bois, Horn and Ship.

Although he doesn't oppose the satellite facility, Cake, president of a group that has fought a condominium project on Deer Island, said, "Cat Island is unique, and to have anything happen to it would be a shame."

He said Cat Island, which is T-shaped, was formed by two separate islands running together, making it one of the most unusual islands in the world.

Cake said he also is concerned about how any development might affect a proposed marine sanctuary south of Cat Island and the Chandeleur National Wildlife Refuge in Louisiana.

NSTL Visitors Center hosts record number

The Visitors Center at the National Space Technology Laboratories has hosted 75,000 visitors so far this fiscal year, according to NSTL officials.

The 75,000 mark is the largest number of visitors ever recorded at the installation.

The record number of visitors represents a significant increase over the 47,000 who registered during the same period last year.

Among the new attractions in the Visitors Center are a Naval Ocean Research and Development Activity (NORDA) exhibit and a Space Shuttle Systems display.

The NORDA exhibit depicts the various sciences involved in the activity's missions, photographs of scientists and technicians at work and an overview of NORDA's activities at NSTL.

The colorful Space Shuttle Systems mural shows major systems within the shuttle, including fuel cells, galley and payload bay, with corresponding color symbols that give details of each area.

The Visitors Center is open Monday through Friday, except holidays, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. For more information, call (801) 688-2321 or 688-2370.

legally limited 10 percent increase in funds from a 2.5 mill ad valorem tax increase countywide.

Randolph said the millage increase would provide about $56,000 annually; —Renegotiating 16th Section land leases.

Sparks said increases in oil and gas severance tax revenues would not help district finances.

"When the State Tax Commission sends the county its portion of severance tax money, the supervisors give half to the school district and then I reduce the amount of minimum program funds to Hancock by that amount," he explained.

To cut expenditures Sparks' options include reducing:

—Certified and non-certified staff. He said the local district has about 11 certified staff members "in excess" of the minimum required number;

—Utility usage, particularly telephone costs.

He said the district's 1982-83 $13,600 telephone expense "was a little high"; —Paying so many substitute teachers.

"You are paying an awful lot of money for substitute teachers," he stated.

Sparks said principals should "be conservative" about teacher sick leave, but at the same time emphasized a sick instructor should not attempt to work.

Terrell Randolph, superintendent of education, revealed that based on his interpretation of state law that the board might receive between $25,000 and $50,000 annually in sales tax revenues from an area of Waveland annexed in 1972.

He explained that the area, some 200 acres in the city limits including Our Shopping Center on US-90, was not officially transferred from the county district to the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District.

Randolph said state laws require that both school district boards and the State Educational Finance Commission officially approve the transfer.

He added that Joseph Gex, board attorney, has not yet rendered his opinion, but the superintendent said he's seeking a state attorney general's ruling.

The superintendent reported the Bay district apparently took for granted since the city utilized the Bay school district that the new town area automatically became part of the municipal school system upon annexation.

He also reported the board could receive 25 percent of the gross revenues from Buccaneer State Park because the same approval procedure when Waveland annexed that area was not undertaken.

But Randolph said Friday a State Bureau of Parks and Recreation official told him in a telephone conversation that the law only applied to "forestry parks."

We understand several folks are out trying to help the Bay St. Louis Babe Ruth 13-year-old All-Stars raise the necessary funds to attend the regional tournament in Sarasota, Fla. next week.

Some donations have been made, yet much more is needed to reach the $4,000 anticipated expenses for the trip.

If you are able, a contribution would be greatly appreciated.

Ronnie Artigues is the manager of the team which won the Mississippi championship last week. Last year's 13-year-olds were also state champs with Artigues at the helm.

We can never recall a state and county election 'so quiet' as this year's.

It is only ten days from now, and everyone is talking about the low key the elections are taking.

In conversations with persons from other counties, they give us the same information, so it seems this election is quiet throughout the state.

We are hoping electors will take the opportunity to cast their ballot on Tuesday, August 2.

We can recall several elections when only one vote made the difference in a race.

Now would be a good time for you to maybe offer transportation to a neighbor, who may not have any means of getting to the polls.

Another item of interest for the residents of Hancock County is the Annual Subscription Drive for Mobile Medic Ambulance Service.

The drive is now underway and will end on July 31, which is only a few days from now.

We understand the drive has been going pretty good, but there is need for many more memberships for the ambulance service.

One never knows when they will need the important services offered by Mobile Medic Ambulance Service, and the membership fee of $39 is very small compared to a non-member using the service.

We are mailing our check tomorrow.

Larry Nash, former editor and publisher of The Sea Coast Echo dropped in for a visit on Thursday.

Nash, who has been working at the Galveston Daily News was enroute to a new position as publisher of the newspaper in Monroe, Ga.

It has been over six years since Nash left Bay St. Louis, and he looks really good.

Time seem to fly as we get older, and it really doesn't seem to have been that long since Nash was at the Echo.

A matter has been brought to our attention by several candidates on how their posters and signs are being defaced, and in some cases even removed.

Political candidates pay a nice sum to have these materials prepared for them, in addition to the time of placing them.

It is against the law to remove or deface political posters.

There are of course, some areas we have seen posters for candidates which are in themselves in violation of the law, especially on utility poles.

If you are against a candidate, express your opinion on election day by casting your ballot for someone else, not by removing or defacing his campaign materials.

We have noted the good news where the Gulf Coast Mental Health is planning on renting a portion of the old Jitney Jungle store building on Second Street for Hancock Industries.

George Graves, director of Hancock Industries will surely welcome the needed working space, as they have really out grown the facility on US-90.

The program is an important one in Hancock County, because it gives some 30 handicapped persons an opportunity of earning a few dollars.

One of the products they manufacture are crab traps, which are popular items this time of the year.

They also recycle aluminum and do other subcontract work.

The support they receive from our Hancock County Board of Supervisors through a tax levy is well spent.

Gulf Coast Mental Health is also an agency of the United Way of Hancock County.

THE OTHER SIDES OF KEYNES

June 1983 marked the 100th anniversary of the birth of John Maynard Keynes, one of the most influential economists of his day — and ours.

Keynes, a Britisher, wrote some of the most significant economics books of this century. His "General Theory of Employment, Interest, and Money," written in 1936 has been called the single most influential book of the twentieth century.

There is little question but that no other economist of the century has so much influenced the thinking of his contemporaries.

Keynes is well known for his theory of the 1930s that monetary expansion and government deficit spending should be used to combat unemployment.

What is not well known, however, is that in 1937, one year after the appearance of his theory, Keynes reversed himself.

Keynes turned around and said then it was time to shift emphasis from fighting unemployment to curbing inflation. Even at the time, inflation was not particularly high by postwar standards and unemployment was still above 10 percent.

It is unfortunate that some of Keynes' disciples failed to follow him in his turn. Those who continued to preach monetary and fiscal expansion throughout the postwar period and beyond should bear some of the responsibility for the inflation from which the nation has been suffering and from which it is now recovering.

It is important that, on the anniversary of his birth, we remember that Keynes, the influential economist, changed his mind.

CRIMINAL JUSTICE

No matter where I travel these days in Mississippi, to town hall meetings or civic clubs, one question almost always comes up:

What's wrong with our country's criminal justice system?

The answer is fairly simple. The criminal justice system broke down when so much attention was being paid to the rights of a convicted criminal and courts began to rule against state death penalty laws they claimed were being invoked unfairly.

The result for years was a legal logjam in which just seven convicts have been put to death as punishment for heinous crimes in the past 16 years. More than 1,200 convicted criminals sit on death row in the nation's prisons, supported by the taxpayers, while their lengthy appeals wind through an interminable process.

The Mississippi case of Jimmy Lee Gray, convicted of raping and murdering a three-year-old Pascagoula girl, points out better than any I have seen in a long time the breakdown in the system.

When so many different courts and judges have heard a case, said that a defendant is guilty and ruled that execution is the appropriate punishment, the sentence should be carried out.

Yet, Gray's case is indicative of the twisted route the appeals process can take. He still sits in the state penitentiary, the death penalty still the sentence. But his case has gone up and down the federal appeals process, to justices on the Supreme Court and back again.

There are signs, however, that the Supreme Court is unwilling to postpone death penalties indefinitely. The high court has ordered lower courts to adopt expedited procedures in capital punishment cases.

That may not be enough. I have introduced legislation in the House of Representatives that would allow for one appeal in capital cases, straight to the Supreme Court. This direct appeal would be ruled on by the highest court in the land expeditiously and would bring to an end the years of waiting for the current avenues of appeal to be exhausted.

Such cases as Jimmy Lee Gray's could then be decided quickly and the appropriate punishment could be carried out, serving the interests of criminal justice in America.

I am working with Senator Paul Laxalt, R-Nevada, and his Subcommittee on Criminal Law on the issue of the direct appeal. It has been a part of the hearings on crime in America which are being conducted by the subcommittee, and I hope some action will be taken soon.

In the meantime, years of delays in carrying out capital punishment will continue to cause backlogs which Supreme Court Justice Lewis Powell said "undermines public confidence in our system of justice and the will and ability of courts to administer it."

Heart Answers

WHAT IS A HEART ATTACK?

A heart attack is the death of a portion of heart muscle that may result in disability or death, depending on how much of the heart is damaged. It occurs when an obstruction in one of the coronary arteries prevents the blood from supplying oxygen to the heart muscle. Heart attack symptoms may include chest pain, nausea and shortness of breath. The risk of heart attack can be reduced by treating high blood pressure, avoiding cigarette smoking, observing a low cholesterol diet and maintaining normal body weight.

Senator Thad Cochran

SPECIAL REPORT

FAA FLIGHT SERVICE STATIONS

Senator Thad Cochran (R-Miss.) has urged the Federal Aviation Administration to continue operation of four flight service stations in Mississippi.

Senator Cochran's comments came during a markup session this week of the Senate Appropriation subcommittee on transportation, which was considering 1984 funding for Department of Transportation programs, including those run by the FAA.

Senator Cochran noted that FAA flight service stations are now operating in Greenwood, Jackson, McComb and Meridian, providing weather and flight plan data for private aviation.

"These are essential services, not only for general aviation, but also for the safety of the public," the Senator commented.

Language in the 1984 appropriations bill requires the FAA to submit any comprehensive plan on national airspace, including plans to close or consolidate any flight service stations, to the appropriate Congressional committees for oversight and approval, or disapproval.

Senator Cochran noted the FAA has requested permission to shut down or consolidate five such stations next year, in Florida, Arizona, Texas, Wisconsin and Washington State, and is seeking to do a nationwide study aimed at consolidating or closing about 75 others within the next five years.

"We are certainly going to let the FAA know of our strong desire that our Mississippi flight service stations be kept in operation. Rapid weather changes such as we experience in the Gulf Coast states necessitate our private pilots and general aviation interests have current data. This is also important for the safety of the public as well," he concluded.

TELEPHONE RATES

U.S. Senator Thad Cochran (R-Miss.) is sponsoring legislation to help insure that local telephone rates "remain at reasonable levels."

Senator Cochran said he is acting because of "grave concern that local telephone rates could increase to alarming and unreasonable levels as a result of the AT&T reorganization."

Senator Cochran said he feared that unless Congress acts to stabilize local telephone rates, consumers in residential and rural communities could be burdened with "rates so high that their ability to pay for telephone service would be destroyed."

The Senator said he is joining with Senator Bob Packwood (R-Ore.), chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, and others in sponsoring the new legislation.

"Reports of recent requests for local telephone rate increases are of great concern to many of us," the Senator said. "We fear that steep rises in local rates will force many consumers to give up their telephones."

The bill would direct the Federal Communications Commission to ensure that universal basic telephone service is available at reasonable rates. This would be achieved by the FCC establishing an access charge system, requiring long distance companies to subsidize, or compensate, local telephone firms for the costs of originating long distance calls.

Senator Cochran noted that at AT&T/Justice Department consent decree in 1982, breaking up the nation's universal telephone service system, has "created confusion and uncertainty over whether we can see universal service maintained at reasonable rates for local customers."

He said earlier predictions of rate increases of only 8 to 10 percent have been far exceeded. Recent rate increase requests total over $5 billion nationwide, the Senate Commerce Committee chairman reported.

Election ..... CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1A

Waveland East Precinct is created from a portion of the former Waveland Precinct.

District Two
The election coordinator reports District Two's six precincts include one new voting area, two precincts with new boundaries and one new voting area.

Leetown, Flat Top and Bayou Phillip Precincts remain the same, the Catahoula Precinct now includes a portion of the former Kiln voting area, Pearlinton is now in District Two and the Waveland West Precinct is formed from a portion of the old Waveland and South Bay Precincts.

District Three
He notes out of District Three's precincts that three are split by the Justice Court District line, boundaries of two are different and two new ones now exist.

Crane Creek, Dedeaux and Standard Precincts all have the same boundaries but are split by the Justice Court District line which is Hwy. 603.

All of Diamondhead is now in District Three and the community's east and west precincts are combined into one.

A new North Bay West Precinct now exists which is the former North Bay Precinct area north of US-90.

District Four
Gottschalk says three District Four precincts now have new boundaries and one new voting area is established.

The new Kiln West Precinct is that portion of the former Kiln Precinct west of Hwy. 603, excluding a portion of the old precinct in the Catahoula area.

The West Shoreline Park Precinct now includes a portion of the Edwardsville area, City Hall Precinct adds two blocks along St. John Street formerly in the old District Four Courthouse Precinct, and South Bay now excludes Waveland.

District Five
The election coordinator reports District Five's six precincts include two with altered boundaries and two new voting areas.

Central School and Fenton Precincts remain the same, Courthouse excludes the two St. John blocks, a few Edwardsville voters are now in the West Shoreline area, North Bay East is that portion of the old North Bay area south of US-90 and Kiln East Precinct is that portion of the old Kiln Precinct east of Hwy. 603.

VOTING LOCATIONS

Gottschalk says three new voting locations are established in Hancock which are Waveland Elementary School for Waveland West, the District Four Community Center for Kiln West, and St. Augustine Seminary gymnasium for North Bay.

Established polling locations will be utilized for the remaining four newly-named precincts which include Waveland East at the Waveland Community Center, North Bay West at Bay Senior High School, Diamondhead at the Diamondhead Sales Lodge and Kiln East at Annunciation Catholic School.

The election coordinator lists all the voting areas and locations which are:

District One
Ansley at the Community Center on Ansley Road, Lakeshore at Gulfview Elementary School at the intersection of Lakeshore and Lower Bay Roads, Clermont Harbor at the Clermont Harbor School and Youth Center on Forest Street, Arlington on Sears Avenue in Waveland across the street from Soldini's Grocery, and Waveland East at the City Community at the corner of Coleman and Central Avenues.

District Two
Leetown at the Community Center on Leetown Road near Leetown Church, Flat Top at the Community Center on Indian Ridge Road, Catahoula at the intersection of Hwy. 43 and Brown Road, Pearlinton at Charles B. Murphy Elementary School on Hwy. 604, Bayou Phillip at the Community Center on US-90, and Waveland West at the elementary school on St. Joseph Street.

District Three
Crane Creek at the Community Center at the intersection of Hwy. 603 and 53, Standard at Martin's Grocery on Standard-Dedeaux Road, Dedeaux at Old Dedeaux School on Standard Vidalia Road, North Bay West at the high school on Blue Meadow Road in Bay St. Louis, and Diamondhead at the sales lodge at 5300 Diamondhead Circle.

District Four
Kiln West at the community center on Hwy. 43 just west of the Hwy. 603 intersection, Shoreline Park West at the East Hancock Volunteer Fire Department Station No. Two at the end of Catalina Street west of the Kiln-Waveland Short Cut Road, City Hall at Bay St. Louis City Hall on Second Street, and South Bay at Christ Episcopal Church in Virginia Hall at 912 South Beach Blvd.

District Five

Judge sets hearing date for Clermont Harbor man

By JUNE M. HEYDT

A preliminary hearing has been set for Aug. 3 for a Clermont Harbor man accused of murder following a shooting last Sunday, according to Lee B. Klein, Justice Court judge.

Howell Crouch, 53, is charged with the murder of Kenneth (Dooley) Williams who was shot during a fight outside a grocery store in Clermont Harbor.

Crouch was released from Hancock County Jail on Tuesday under $25,000 bond.

Crouch apparently was beaten up during the brawl which resulted in Williams' death, said Alvin Ladner, Hancock County Sheriff's Department investigator.

Investigation revealed that several men were fighting outside of Garcia's Grocery, Ladner said. Crouch's roommate telephoned Crouch who arrived soon afterward and joined the fighting.

At some point, Crouch apparently produced a .25-caliber revolver and fired two shots, the second hitting Williams in the groin, the investigator reported.

Williams died in surgery at Hancock General Hospital several hours later.

ETV Brief

SERIES RERUN

Amid twirling parasols and lifted top hats, viewers are reintroduced to the Victorian world of "The Pallisers" when the popular 22-week series in rebroadcast on the Mississippi ETV Network at 8 p.m., Sundays, beginning July 31. The series was first seen on public television in 1977.

Based on six novels by Anthony Trollope, the television saga of the personal and political fortunes of the aristocratic British Palliser family stars Philip Latham, Susan Hampshire, Roland Culver, Caroline Mortimer, Anthony Andrews and Anthony Ainley.

The series opens with the arranged marriage of Plantagenet (Latham) and Glencora (Hampshire) despite the romantic involvement of each with someone else.

The titled elders determine that Plantagenet and Glencora should marry; her beauty and his political dedication will combine admirably, his maturity and serious nature will restrain her irresponsible high spirits, and, above all, they say, the money and the breeding are right on both sides.

Glencora is heartbroken. She is desperately in love with the dissolute and penniless ne'er-do-well, Burgo Fitzgerald. Plantagenet is hardly more enthusiastic about the match, believing Glencora to be shallow, frivolous and stupid.

Check SHERIFF RONALD PETERSON'S Leadership Record

HIGH SCHOOL LEADERSHIP

Sheriff Peterson, At Bay St. Louis High School, was elected by his classmates president of his class all four years. He was also captain of the football, basketball and baseball team in his senior year, and upon graduation received the Most Outstanding Athlete Award.

COLLEGE LEADERSHIP

At Pearl River Junior College, Sheriff Peterson was chosen as monitor in charge of his dormitory.

MILITARY LEADERSHIP

Sheriff Peterson served four years in the United States Marine Corps and is a Vietnam veteran. In December 1965, Sheriff Peterson, then a squad leader serving in Vietnam, guided a squad of Marines deep into the jungles of Vietnam on a reconnaissance patrol to gather information about enemy activity. Under extremely hazardous conditions and enemy fire, Sheriff Peterson accomplished his mission and was meritoriously promoted to the rank of Sergeant. He received numerous military medals and upon completion of his military service, he received an honorable discharge and was highly recommended for re-enlistment.

LAW ENFORCEMENT LEADERSHIP

• During Sheriff Peterson's term in office for the last 3 1/2 years, more criminal indictments have been returned in the history of Hancock County for this period of time. Of the Grand Jury indictments returned, Sheriff Peterson's office has an unbelievable 99% conviction rate.

• During Sheriff Peterson's term in office more criminals have been sent to the penitentiary than in any other period of time in the history of Hancock County. Four years ago, 16 criminals a year were sent to the penitentiary. In the first 6 months of this year, 38 criminals have already been sent.

• Sheriff Peterson has an extensive background in narcotic investigation and will continue to focus his leadership toward the drug problem in Hancock County. He has participated in over 1,200 drug-related arrests in his law enforcement career.

• Sheriff Peterson was instrumental in leading investigations involving white-collar crimes in Hancock County.

• Sheriff Peterson led a team of officers on a triple capital murder investigation in 1981. Due to his leadership, Hancock County now has an inmate on death row.

• Sheriff Peterson formed an arson investigation squad for Hancock County. Three felony arson cases investigated by the squad will be presented to a Grand Jury this year.

• Sheriff Peterson is a leader in all types of modern law enforcement techniques. He is a graduate of the Mississippi Law Enforcement Officers Training Academy basic police class. He graduated from the Law Enforcement Academy's investigation class. He is a graduate of the University of Mississippi's narcotic class and attended numerous law enforcement seminars throughout the state. He is a member of the Mississippi Sheriffs Association and National Sheriffs Association.

Education, senior citizens, and the economy were subjects discussed at a forum conducted at the Waveland American Legion, Wednesday night.

John Scaffidi, chamber director was moderator for the program. Questions for the candidates were presented to a panel of three before the program.

Candidates running for the office of state senator in district 46 were Louis J. Breaux, Earl E. (Buck) Ladner, Jerry E. Medford, Curtis M. (Curt) Seymour, Gary E. (Gene) Taylor, and Russell Thompson.

All are seeking election on August 2 in the Democratic Primary Election except Thompson who is unopposed as the Republican nominee.

Thompson introduced himself by saying, "I am from Ocean Springs. As I view this district as a newly formed one, I intend to represent Hancock County completely."

He continued, "I'm an attorney. I'm a Mississippian. I've had 10.5 years in the Air Force. I have a master's degree. I have served in the senate."

"I know administrative law. I want to represent this district."

Breaux, commenting on the allotted time of two minutes to speak, said, "Two minutes is not very much because I feel the state senate and the house seats are the most important offices elected."

"The laws are made by those two bodies. I am 55 years old, I have seven children and 12 grandchildren. I live on a farm just off of HWY 603."

"I have not just decided to run. I was president of Hancock Farm Bureau for 15 years. I served on the Port and Harbor Commission for four years. I am a trustee of the Hancock County Library, a member of the Chamber of Commerce and I was United Way Chairman last year."

Ladner said, "I am no stranger to most of you. I am 35 years old and was the youngest elected judge in Hancock County."

"Tonight I'm here to ask you to let me serve you again. I pledge to you to continue to serve you as I did when I was a state representative."

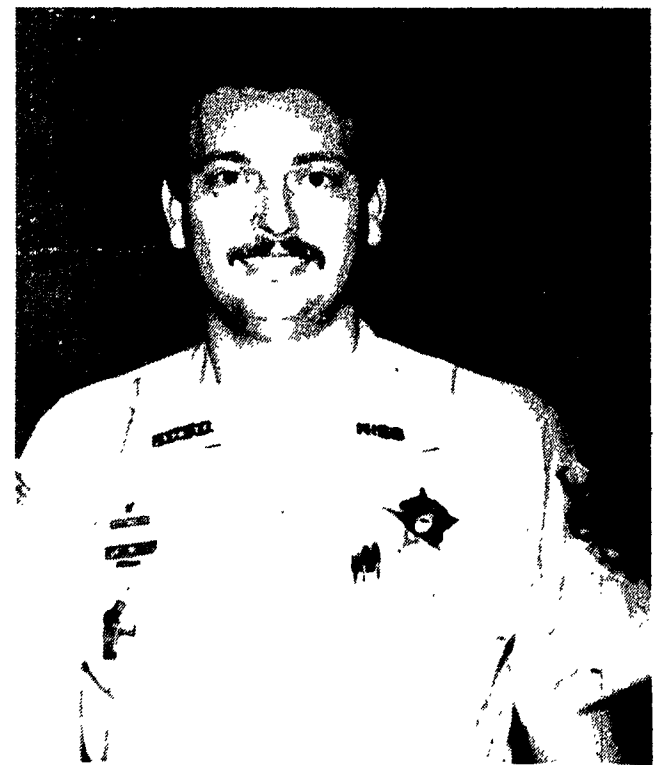

"When I was in office I published an article in your own paper, The Sea Coast Echo, on what's going on in Jackson. I will renege these policies so you will know what's going on in Jackson."

"I'm before you again saying these are still my priorities, law enforcement and education. Industry will not come into an area where the crime is high or there is not a good education system."

Seymour started by saying he is a life long resident of the coast, and that he attended the University of Oregon.

He said, "I've been a licensed funeral director, I've been a licensed real estate broker."

"My platform is three priorities, education, economy that can be helped by bringing in new non-polluting industries, and crime and law enforcement."

Seymour continued, "Also, one other very important thing is looking after our elderly people."

"I am experienced in contracting and budgeting. I pledge I will always make myself ready and available to you."

Medford said he was a retired federal agent and worked in the narcotics field for 25 years.

"I served on an executive committee for the past governor. I have a platform to deal with narcotics, with your children, show them from the first grade on the dangers of drugs. Seventy to 75 percent of violent crimes are related to narcotics."

"Let's make a better future for our children and let's work together," Medford concluded.

Taylor said he feels his job with Gulf Container Corp. has given him a good background for this job. He said he does business with just about every manufacturer on the coast.

Continuing Taylor said, "I'm a salesman, it's my business to get along with people."

"For the past two years I have served as a Bay St. Louis councilman. I have tried to get the maximum benefits for the people with the least cost to the taxpayers."

The first question asked the candidates was, "What do you see as needs for education and how do you think it could be funded?"

Breaux answered first saying, "Consolidate school districts. We need a better curriculum. More programs."

Ladner said, "The needs are very broad as far as the funding. Funding must come from our local levels. We need a percentage of matching funds. I am opposed to the counties continuously going to the legislature and saying, 'this is your baby, feed it.'"

Third up, Medford said, "As I stated, our youth are our future. I support totally the government's program for education."

Seymour stated, "Pay increases for teachers. Keep our local people at home."

Taylor said, I think the three most important things are, 1. Kindergarten, 2. Mandatory education, and 3. We live in a competitive society, then we have to pay our teachers on a competitive scale."

"In Hancock County how much money goes for non-essentials. We need to put the money in the right places."

Thompson said, "We have an excellent education system, we just have to keep it operating. Our people frequently move out of the state just to have pay averaging South Eastern. We need decent pay scales for our teachers."

"Some sort of merit evaluation should be established. Kindergarten has been enacted but nothing has been done about it. Kindergarten has been proven to be a very favorable factor to education."

"There's got to be a lot more uniformity."

The next question presented to the candidates was, "What ideas do you have for legislature to benefit our senior citizens."

Taylor responded, "The City of Bay St. Louis would serve as a good model training program for senior citizens. I would continue this program. I also think the greatest thing is to provide safety for senior citizens' homes."

Seymour stated, "One of the priorities of my platform is to support the elderly who are on a limited income."

He continued, "One place we could improve is by cutting some of the giveaway programs. Find where the fraud is involved in such programs as food stamps. I'm not advocating taking anything away from folks who deserve it, but stop the ones who don't."

Ladner answered, "Exemption from taxes and providing transportation are two things we can do for the elderly." "See that they are properly cared for. I hope to be one some day, and I want it as much as I can get it."

Breaux said, "I'm one of seven children and I'm sure going to take care of my mother and dad. A lot of senior citizens have pensions and do have incomes. Young married couples are the ones struggling now."

"Senior citizens must feel needed in the community. Ask the legislature to find programs that would encourage groups or people to take care and let them know no that they are wanted."

Medford answered, "Supplement older people in their pharmaceutical and operational care."

Thompson stated, "The fact remains we do have people on limited income. Older people shouldn't be taxed for drugs or groceries. The older group is a large majority of the people. Every effort ought to be made to provide transportation and food for those who can't provide it themselves."

The next question asked was, "What do you think can be done about the economy?"

Breaux answered first, "We have a lot of ways to recover. There are some 60 agencies and commissions duplicating an awful lot of services. All are designed to do the same thing and none can get the funds."

"Cutting back on agencies that are duplicating their services and not getting anything done. Transferring funds to stay on the black."

"New ideas and new sources of income."

Ladner said, "In 1983 the states economy declined, revenue coming in has diminished. A lot of wasteful spending has been going on. Ten percent of the counties money has gone to fund parties on the coast."

"Tax the luxury items. I can't see tax increases on food, drugs, or medications."

Medford simply stated, "It is a complex problem, tighten your belts."

Seymour said, Economy is getting worse decreasing our expenditure. Cut out the coffee expenditure for the legislature which came to $200,000 this year."

Taylor answered, "There are a number of rules as far as maintaining government. You don't spend more than is being taken in. Expenditures should decrease accordingly."

Thompson responded, "It is only $10,000 for the legislature's coffee fund. I think we should let them buy their own coffee."

"We have too many programs that are duplicated. 'We enjoy one of the best income tax provisions that exist. Maybe there could be an adjustment there. If you're earning a living then help support your state.'"

Another question asked was, "What do you see as pressing needs for Mississippi during the next four years?"

Medford explained, "The three most pressing needs are 1, the elderly 2, Crime and 3, Clean industry."

Ladner stated, "Without hesitation, I think it's jobs, economy and industry."

Seymour added, "I think we need to bring more industry to the state and take care of the industry we have, for an example the fishing industry. We also need more jobs to stimulate the economy."

Thompson said, "Jobs. We've got the best economic development program in Jackson. The key community concept assures a dozen or so certain points. Make the sunbelt more attractive for people rather than industry."

Thompson added, "Drugs are a tremendously important problem."

"A lot of unground land. Land is sitting idle where soybeans used to grow. The farmer can't afford to plant any longer. We need to balance agriculture with industry."

Breaux stated, "I think the single most important job in the state is to elect the people with the leadership to get the job done."

"We have nothing to export. The garment factories can't compete with imports. We need jobs. People fought Dupont coming in, here but it gave people jobs."

"The nuclear waste scare is an important problem. The legislature said that there would be no waste store in the state. We need to guarantee that."

"How are we going to get jobs? Our problem is to find the finances to operate this state, find the jobs."

Taylor explained, "Our pressing need is to educate our young people. Without education they are doomed to menial tasks."

"The seafood industry should be built up. Put the fishermen to work. We should build up Bayou Cadet like they built up Back Bay, Biloxi."

"We have to restore faith in our government. Most people don't think it makes a difference. It does."

The last question asked the candidates was, "Why do you feel you are the best qualified candidate and what can you do that the others can't do?"

Breaux answered the last question first, "We have to find new sources of revenue."

He continued, "Through the Port and Harbor Commission we should help build up Port Bienville and the airport commercially. Find a way to get cattle export facilities. We have a sleeping giant, the airport, that's never been used."

"I helped start the Farmer's market."

"I have demonstrated leadership and new ideas."

Ladner was next, "I can offer my past experience in the legislature and judicial systems. I served as a judge and as a state representative. I know the job, I know the people in Jackson and I will not have to go through a learning process. I can start from day one, working for you."

Taylor explained, "Public service is what I have studied. We need a voice for reason and reform. I want to restore faith in the government. I want to see our state, cities, and nation improve."

Thompson said, "I think my experience, attitude and record qualify me. I have the capability, desire, knowledge, experience and contact. I have everything that's needed to be your senator."

Seymour added, "There are six good men here all qualified. I want to work with and for the people. I am dedicated, conscientious and I want to serve you."

Medford stated, "I have spent all my adult life in government. I'm experienced as foreman of the grand jury. I have talked to all of you leading people, and am very impressed with the remarks."

"When I was with Port Bienville, I went in depth to see that your tax dollars were well spent."

Our youth need and deserve better educational opportunities. Not only should the basics be taught, but also computer literacy and technical skills. I will be dedicated to work for improvements in education.

Our adults need and want jobs that will enable them to earn a decent income. Because a healthier business environment benefits all, I will support legislation that will be beneficial to our existing businesses and industries as well as attract new employment opportunities for the unemployed.

Our senior citizens need security. Many of these people are often the victims of crime and suffer the most in cost of living increases. All legislation should consider the impact on the financial and personal needs of our elderly. I will stay informed of senior citizens' problems and protect their interests.

Youth, adults, and senior citizens join with me to improve District 106 and our great state of Mississippi....vote August 2.

Coast welcomes foreign visitors

By JUNE M. HEYDT

The Coast has welcomed two exchange students from Finland and they are enjoying Mississippi to the hilt they said.

Minna Liisa Auhto, 18, and Minna Aaltonen, 17, are here as exchange students on a program sponsored by the International Lions Club.

The girls have been visiting cities all over Mississippi and are staying with Lions Club members who volunteered their homes for the visitors.

Their stay in Mississippi is for six weeks.

Auhto came to the Coast from Hattiesburg and before that she had visited Natchez. When she leaves the Coast she will visit Louisville.

Aaltonen visited Brandon and Clarksdale before coming to the Coast. She will leave for McComb in a week.

Auhto and Aaltonen both said that when they thought of the United States they thought about New York City and are very happy that they got to see another part of the country instead.

They thought it was great that they got to swim in the Gulf of Mexico and were surprised to see so much green Mississippi. Auhto said there are lots of fields and forests here.

"But, what I liked most of all were all the nice people here," said Aaltonen.

"Everything is so relaxed and free and people seem to live life without stress.

The boys are more open and more humorous. Back home everyone is serious and quiet.

The two girls are from different parts of Finland although they're both from the Southern part. They just met when they came to the coast. Auhto lives about 10 miles from the capital, Helsinki, and Aaltonen lives about 60 miles from the capital.

They said that Finland is much cooler and that during the summer they have 24-hour daylight. It might sometimes look like dusk, said Auhto.

The trip has been quite an adventure and they haven't gotten homesick at all.

The way they got the trip was to fill out applications that the Lions Club made available. They paid for the air fare, but everything else was handled by the Lions Club.

Auhto and Aaltonen are staying with Jane Baumgartner in Diamondhead. They said that through the families they have met a lot of young people.

"I'd really like to come back someday but, it will take time," said Auhto.

There are 300 students from Finland in the United States now. The fly back home on Aug. 9. Finland is 8 hours ahead of us. The trip will take 26 hours.

Trade, technical school enrollment increases with grads finding jobs

Each year more students are choosing to enter America's trade and technical schools.

These schools, found in cities and towns nationwide, offer students hands-on training in the shortest possible time and a better opportunity for a good job upon graduation.

Over one million students enrolled in private career schools in 1982. At the same time, the National Association of Trade and Technical Schools, which represents accredited postsecondary schools, reports enrollments up nearly 15 percent.

"There are probably over 100 different reasons why our industry is enjoying such a great influx of students," said Henry Herzing, president of NATTS. "But the real key comes down to jobs."

Today many individuals, including college graduates, have difficulty finding job opportunities because they lack the job skills employers want. For many others, however, changes in technology, product demands, demographics and a variety of other economic factors have brought great prosperity.

"Americans are in for a decade of sweeping demographic, economic and geographic realignment," said Herzing. "Future opportunities for the unskilled will be very limited while skilled workers will find employment opportunities are numerous."

Although today's emphasis on job training and the increasing demand for skilled workers has made vocational education one of the fastest growing sectors in U.S. education, representatives in the trade and technical school industry continue to look ahead.

"Our biggest challenge is keeping up," said Herzing. "We can't afford to be looking back."

"We are buying and changing equipment and curriculum at a furious pace. Our very survival depends on our ability to know what jobs are available and to train workers for them."

Data processing, electronics, medical services, drafting, auto repair, and radio-TV servicing are currently the "hottest" occupations. But according to Herzing, there is always a constant demand for more carpenters, cooks and chefs, plumbers, air conditioning mechanics, dental assistants, and many other trades.

Tips On Choosing A School

In all, students can choose from among 98 potential careers that are listed in the NATTS Handbook of Trade and Technical Careers and Training. However, Herzing advises students to consider several of the following factors before enrolling in any school.

COURSES— Are the courses current? Will the material used in these courses prepare you for employment in your chosen field?

TEACHERS— Are they experienced? What are they doing to stay abreast of the rapid changes in your field?

ACCREDITATION— Is the school accredited? Accreditation means the school has passed a thorough examination of its educational quality, teaching ability, and administrative integrity by an accrediting agency recognized by the U.S. Department of Education.

STATE LICENSING— Is the school licensed by the state? Most states require licensing and a notice should appear in the school's catalog.

FACILITIES AND EQUIPMENT— Are the facilities well maintained? How old are they? Is the equipment in the school actively used in today's job market?

HANDS-ON TRAINING— Is there a lab or shop that can provide "hands-on" experience with the tools of your trade? How much time is allotted for such training?

PLACEMENT— Does the school help its graduates find jobs?

COST— How much money for how much training? Does the cost of tuition include all the necessary supplies and support materials which are required to train for this career?

FINANCIAL AID— Does the school have any kind of financial aid program? What benefits are available? What is the criteria for eligibility for such programs?

In addition, Herzing also advises students to talk to the schools' graduates, instructors, and current students. According to Herzing, by asking the right questions ahead of time, students can select the school that is right for them. For a free handbook listing of more than 500 accredited trade and technical schools, write to NATTS (Handbook), 2021 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006-1077.

"If you are interested in the Mississippi Landowners Assoc., which is seeking the return of mineral rights to the taxpaying landowners, vote for J.H. 'Buster' Strahan. This race could be the beginning of a political time bomb in Mississippi. A landslide victory by me in the first primary would help the landowners' cause tremendously - sending a strong message to every politician in the state.

"Politicians would be glad to get behind this movement, if they saw this issue as a sure way of being elected. I am not in this race for selfish reasons - I just think our mineral rights were taken from the land by a political few for a political few. I would like to see this trend reversed, in a way similar to the Louisiana law, where after 10 years, the mineral rights revert to the landowner.

"I am asking all concerned citizens to vote for J.H. 'Buster' Strahan and help support this important movement landowners' movement."

Help Your Heart

Pregnancy and Exercise

The average woman who is accustomed to regular exercise can continue to do so during pregnancy without jeopardizing her baby, James Metcalfe, M.D., said at a recent American Heart Association meeting.

But exercising may not be a good thing for the pregnant woman who is not accustomed to it, cautioned Dr. Metcalfe, professor of medicine at the Oregon Health Sciences University in Portland.

His recommendation is based on several recent observations, all the more important because of the increasing popularity of exercise. Exercise, he pointed out, redistributes blood flow, with more blood going to the exercised muscles than, say, to the kidneys. Whether exercise also "steals" blood from the uterus of the pregnant woman hasn't been known.

Putting that question to test, Dr. Metcalfe made pregnant pygmy goats exercise on a treadmill. Those carrying only one fetus delivered kids of normal size, but those carrying twins had abnormally small kids, indicating a diversion of maternal blood and oxygen away from the uterus.

Dr. Metcalfe also conducted a study of 65 women exercising three times a week. When the women exercised for fun and pleasure, their babies were of normal weight - unlike women who had to perform strenuous physical work, as reported by other investigators. Another experiment, using hens' eggs in an incubator, showed that increasing the concentration of oxygen speeded up the growth of the embryo. Women who exercise have a higher level of hemoglobin in their blood, Dr. Metcalfe said.

James Metcalfe, M.D.

When pregnant women stop exercising, blood tends to pool in veins in their legs, and the unborn baby's heart rate goes down. Many women instinctively know they should put their legs up. "They feel better and probably their babies do, too, he said."

Women who smoke not only may be adversely affecting the birth weight and maturation of their babies, the scientist warned, but also may be imposing upon them "a persistent retardation of behavior skills" because less oxygen-rich blood reaches their fetus.

ROAD MAINTENANCE

●Develop plans and schedules to hard surface all roads within district.

—Schedule will be on the basis of traffic (survey will be conducted during first year in office).

—Schedule will be prepared and published during second year in office.

—I will be able to tell any citizen when he/she can expect to have a hard surface road.

—I will (in the first 90 days) develop and publish road grading schedules.

—I will emphasize immediately the elimination of right-of-way growth which constitutes traffic hazards in curves and at intersections.

—I will establish and maintain adequate landfills. Having done so, I will ask the Sheriff to assist in the vigorous enforcement of litter laws, and seek prisoner labor to be used to clean up unsightly trash and litter.

—I will utilize Government surplus equipment to the county's best interest. I will not spend thousands of dollars to purchase equipment when it is available for almost nothing.

—I recognize that road damage which occurs during heavy rains is often due to inadequate drainage. I will work to improve drainage and subsequently reduce maintenance cost. Prisoner labor can be used effectively in this endeavor.

MONEY MANAGEMENT

—I will establish budget priorities on the basis of "what planned activities have the greatest impact on the lives of our citizens, i.e., police protection, fire protection, etc."

—I recognize that juvenile delinquency is many times the by-product of juvenile boredom. I will promote the construction of recreational facilities for our youth.

—I will promote a program designed to make Government more accessible to the elderly and the handicapped. Parking facilities, rest room facilities, stairs and steps, etc., schools should not serve as barriers.

—I will hire qualified and capable people to work for you. I will not utilize your tax resources for personal enhancement.

ATTITUDE

—I will always maintain the attitude that Government services are for the benefit of the taxpayer. I will never allow myself to believe that my services are a favor to you. I will work for your best interest.

Hayden pleased with state audit of college accounts

Gulf Coast Junior College President Dr. J.J. Hayden Jr. says he is pleased that a recently-completed state audit of school records cited no serious deficiencies in the way the school is conducting its business.

Hayden said the audit for fiscal 1981 was reviewed Wednesday for the college Board of Trustees by Steven Duncan, senior accountant with the State Department of Audit.

"A couple of things, things we already knew about, were called to our attention," Hayden said. "One has to do with accounting for all fiscal property owned by the college. The other dealt with student accounts receivable subsidiary records."

Hayden said the state is asking the college to establish the costs of fixed assets "dating all the way back to 1911 when the college first began operating."

"We have a new employee who has been working on this for about four months. But we don't believe it will be possible ever to establish exact values because some of the old records simply don't exist," Hayden said.

He said he is confident that the state will be willing to accept a certain percentage and use this as a starting base.

The problem with keeping the student records current

"stems in part from a shortage of personnel," Hayden said. "Really it's a matter of record-keeping rather than accounting for funds."

A person has been hired to bring the records up to date and Hayden said this should be accomplished in a couple of years. "We are satisfied with the progress we've made so far," he added.

Hayden said the state auditors have indicated that they will begin in September an audit that will cover fiscal 1982 and 1983.

"They (the auditors) hope to complete their work by April 1984. Our state audits then will be current," Hayden said.

Collecting for a Good Cause

When's the last time you went collecting for a good cause? Certainly many charities qualify. But so does your bedroom. Your bathroom. Your foyer. I'm not talking about the Run for Rooms. I'm talking about collecting-photo collecting. What better way to fill a bare spot on a wall than with a truly first-class photograph? Or maybe several!

Now, don't panic. You needn't go gallery hopping, spending hundreds or even thousands of dollars on fine photography just in order to cover a couple of cracks. You're a photographer, remember? Why not plan on collecting your own photos, possibly mixed with a few purchased from galleries and other photographers.

Just as most fine painting collections are a potpourri of styles by many artists of different eras, some of the most attractive and interesting family photo collections have included original prints purchased from various sources, as well as professionally enlarged and mounted amateur shots.

Collecting prints—like this 1928 shot of George Eastman (left) and Thomas Alva Edison—can be rewarding in more ways than one.

The professionally done prints, or fine photographs, are likely to increase in value, turning into a good investment as the years go by. And the amateur prints will add personal interest to the collection.

"If you like a picture, it belongs in your collection," according to Julia Scully, editor of Modern Photography and a collector, herself. "As your tastes change, you can always change your display, but don't acquire a photo unless you like it. There's nothing worse than trying to live with photographs you find boring or displeasing."

"And you needn't concentrate on 'name' photographers. Many fine and historically valuable photos have been made by unknown cameramen in neighborhood studios or small towns."

The point Scully is making is that good photographs are everywhere. And they're worth acquiring for the best possible reason—they give you pleasure.

You can buy fine photographs from many different galleries across the country. They include the works of such fine artists as Harry Callahan, Ansel Adams, Edward Weston, and Minor White. But remember: the bigger the name, the bigger the price.

You can also find quality photographs, though usually by lesser known photographers, in college towns offering photo courses. Both photo students and teachers commonly sell prints for between $10 and $100.

Museums, too, often sell photographic prints to the public, although the prints are usually made from copy negatives and are inferior in quality to those made from the original negatives. But, the prices of the prints are likely to be substantially lower.

Where do your own photos fit into your collection? Right where they look the best—on the wall. You may be surprised to find just how good a snapshot can look once it's professionally enlarged and mounted.

"In displaying prints," Scully advises, "allow a fair amount of room. Don't crowd pictures one on top of the other. And don't use elaborate frames."

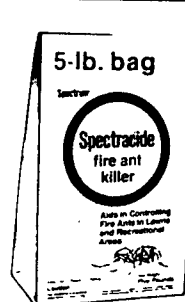

Plain metal or wooden frames that don't detract from the photograph are best.

"Lighting should be even, but there's no need to attempt to duplicate museum or gallery lighting. Just avoid deep shadows falling over your prints. Don't shine spotlights on your pictures for days at a time; the rays from the bulb can cause prints to fade."

MEDICAL JOURNAL

The long-range outlook for a child stricken with cancer has changed dramatically in the past two decades, according to a recent broadcast sponsored by the Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center and The Prudential Insurance Company.

Dr. Giulio D'Angio, director of the Children's Cancer Research Center at Children's Hospital in Philadelphia, said, "There is now more than a vague hope of control. To achieve this result, however, parents must immediately consult with a center dedicated to the management of malignant disease in children."

The tremendous advances in cancer treatment are largely responsible for the much-improved survival of childhood cancer patients. "We have a multitude of new approaches that can reverse a seemingly discouraging situation," said Dr. D'Angio. These approaches, though not foolproof, do provide parents with a reasonably optimistic outlook.

Dr. D'Angio points out that doctors now have the opportunity to consider the future of the childhood cancer patient. "It's only a partial success for the cured child to become a chronically ill adult because of treatment he or she received for cancer," said Dr. D'Angio. "We are now focusing more not only on the cure, but also the quality of life which they will lead."

District attorney candidates state their qualifications

By JUNE M. HEYDT

The growing problem of drug use in Hancock County was the main subject discussed at a political forum held Wednesday evening at the Waveland American Legion by District Attorney candidates.

The forum was sponsored by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce. John Scafidi, chamber director, moderated the program.

Questions directed to the candidates were given to a panel of three before the program. No questions from the audience were allowed.

Candidates running for the office of district attorney are Cono Caranna, Albert Necaise, incumbent; and Ed O'Neil.

Caranna spoke first introduced himself and gave his qualifications.

"After 12 years of practicing law in and out of the system, individually and collectively, I feel prepared to assume duties of this position," said Caranna.

He added, "We need to have all levels of law enforcement, local, federal, and state working together then we will have an advantage over crime."

"The district attorney is the one man who sees that investigations are done. We need to use all of our tools."

Necaise introduced himself by saying, "I am presently completing my third term as district attorney. I've tried to repay you for the confidence you gave me in 1971."

He went on to say, "Our office has a 97 percent conviction rate in this district. There are 35 people on death row 11 of them were sent from this district."

"We were instrumental in recovering more than $240,000 restitution for victims of crime since 1981."

Necaise addressed the audience saying, "Remember this whoever you hire for this position you are saddled with him for the next four years, you can't fire him."

"My other two opponents neither one have ever tried a single case. I think a man should serve as long as he can do the job."

O'Neil was the last candidate to speak saying, "I attended the University of Mississippi Law School and then entered into a career with the FBI. I retired last July and was encouraged by numerous people to run for this job."

"There have been too many cases passed through the files. A policeman puts his life on the line, puts his blood into catching these criminals, and then the courts just let them go," O'Neil said.

"Two areas of particular interest are one we need a task like force coordinating jurisdiction, the other, no white collar crime will be tolerated. I will prosecute them."

O'Neil continued, "Eighty-five percent of all crimes are drug related such as purse snatching and thefts. Most of the people were trying to get money for drugs."

The question, "What specific programs would you implement during your term in office?" was asked of the candidates.

Necaise gave an answer of continuance.

"I will continue the diversion program for the young."

"Continue victim-witness program."

"Continue disposition letters."

"Continue to require restitution."

"Continue to work on getting a computer tied into all law enforcement bureaus."

"Continue area push on drugs and violent crimes."

"Continue program on drug rehabilitation."

"Continue to cooperate with all law enforcement agencies."

"Continue to serve you as I have in the past."

"O'Neil answered the question next."

"I will utilize the district attorney's office as leadership on crackdown on drugs. Crackdown on white collar crime."

"I would also like to see the local grand juries utilized."

"It is a fact that I too have often stated that a computer in that office is long overdue."

"If a person is arraigned and not tried in 270 days he is acquitted, no matter what the crime. I would put a stop to that."

Answering the question, Caranna said, "I would get Harrison, Hancock and Stone counties on a coordinated federal, state, and local law enforcement agency."

"I would make sure no special people get special deals."

"I would see that individual plea bargains are put down for everyone to see them. Establish objective criteria when it comes to plea bargaining."

"The more effectively you have the office, the more organized, the more cases can be tried."

The next question presented to the three candidates was, "What can you do for your constituents that your other opponents can't do?"

O'Neil answered first, "I think the fact that I've been a police officer. I can identify with them."

Caranna answered, "Very nearly everything that you can do in office can be done by another."

"I believe I can do things that the incumbent hasn't done. I believe by representing my community that I would be able to offer something in that office that isn't there now."

"Seeing to it that we use all the law enforcement that is available."

Necaise said, "I can give 18 years of trial cases. Criminal and civil are as different as night and day. In a criminal case a person is found guilty only if it is beyond a reasonable doubt. In civil cases only nine of the jurors have to agree. In criminal cases all 12 have to agree."

"I have tried more than 1,000 cases in three counties. I have a staff that is competent and can serve you, the other two can't tell you they have handled criminal cases."

"I'm the most experienced criminal trial lawyer in Hancock County."

The final question asked the candidates was, "Do you have plans on hiring an assistant district attorney to come to Hancock County other than when court is in session?"

Necaise answered, "I already have an assistant designated to handle Hancock County, John Johnson. No law enforcement agency can say they have called the district attorney and not gotten immediate help."

Caranna said, "Yes, I do and I believe it will be a change from what you've had in the past."

O'Neil said, "Yes, I do. I would make it my personal business to come here myself."

Garbage truck overturns on US-90

By JUNE M. HEYDT

It was a lucky accident, if there's any such thing as a lucky accident.

James Williams, 205 Union Street, Bay St. Louis, came out of an accident that occurred at the corner of US-90 and Main Street Friday morning, "just a little shook up."

"It's a blessing no one was hurt," said Doug Williams, Bay St. Louis police chief, about the accident in which an eight-wheeler garbage truck turned over on the highway.

According to Chief Williams the under carriage broke away from the wheels throwing the truck out of balance.

When the truck landed the driver was standing up in the cab said Chief Williams. He added if the driver hadn't been standing up he would have been dead.

A witness to the accident, David Thompson of 122 Boardman Street, Bay St. Louis, said, "I saw the rear end fall out and watched it turn over. We rushed to the truck and broke the windshield out to get the driver loose."

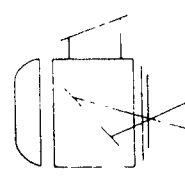

James Williams said, "After I heard the pop I tried to hit the brakes but, it didn't do any good. I just thank God that there wasn't a car or any people there when it happened."

The truck was heading west on US-90 when the driver attempted to make a right turn onto Main Street.

"The front started to turn but the wheels went straight," said James Williams.

Paul Montjoy of Gulf Coast Waste Disposal, owners of the truck, said the vehicle has been a jinx. He said he had just finished paying $8,000 to have it repaired.

Candlelight ceremony unites Cloyd, Lynch

St. Clare Catholic Church in Waveland was the setting for the July 16 evening marriage of Harriet Anne Lynch and Preston David Cloyd.

The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Harry William Lynch of Waveland and the late Mr. Lynch. The groom's parents are Dr. and Mrs. William Preston Cloyd of Lafayette, La.

Rev. William Vollar officiated at the double ring candlelight ceremony. Nuptial music was provided by organist Mrs. Olive McKenna and vocalists Dan Griffin and Hugh Griffin, cousins of the bride.

A procession of candles cradled in swaths of magnolia leaves lined the aisles. Candles mounted in stately brass holders filled the altar, while a tapestry of gladioli and chrysanthemums scented the air.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Hugh Griffin, the bride wore the wedding gown worn by the groom's mother, a creation of white tulle over silk taffeta and lace, fashioned with a basque bodice of tulle appliqued with a motif of jeweled lace which also edged the lavalier neckline outlined with petals of tulle. The bouffant skirt over layers of tulle and taffeta featured a kerchief peplum of French lace embroidered with jewels and seedpearls. Her veil of illusion cascaded from a Juliet cap over the formal train of the gown.

She carried a cascade of stephanotis, phalaenopsis orchids and baby's breath accented with ivy.

Alice Lynch of Waveland attended her sister as maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Stephanie Buttrich of Biloxi; Terry Ray of Houston, Tex. and Ellen Lynch of Waveland, sister of the bride.

The attendants were attired in floor-length gowns of blue tissue taffeta with fitted bodices and ruffled off-the-shoulder necklines. They carried small cascades of white miniature carnations accented with baby's breath and ivy.

Marc Anthony Namias of

Lafayette, La. was best man. Groomsmen were David Weinstein of Miami Beach, Fla.; Howard Black Burch of Lafayette, La. and Brian Rourke of New Orleans. Serving as ushers were Robert Malcom Lusk of Portland, Ore. and Lynn Charles Yarris of Albany, Calif.

A reception followed the ceremony at Jourdan River Shores Clubhouse. A white gazebo festooned with flowers and ferns provided a dazzling centerpiece.

Missy Breath of Waveland and Jennifer Manuel of Jackson, cousins of the bride, passed out rice bags to guests.

For traveling to the British Virgin Islands, the bride chose a grey linen dress accented with pink and white at the neckline with matching jacket and white and gold accessories.

The couple will reside in Baton Rouge, La.

Paul, Keith plan August 5 wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Lee Paul of Bay St. Louis announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Laura Beth Paul, to Larry Ernest Keith, son of Mrs. Rose Watkins Keith of Hattiesburg and the late Jerry P. Keith.

The bride-elect is a 1977 graduate of Bay Senior High School and a 1981 graduate of the University of Southern Mississippi. She is employed with Douglas A. Ruckman, CPA in New Orleans.

The prospective groom is a 1973 graduate of Hattiesburg High School and a 1977 graduate of the University of Southern Mississippi. He is employed with Wright Marine Surveying Inc., Tiger Island, La.

The couple will solemnize vows in a 4 p.m. ceremony August 5 at St. Mark's Episcopal Church in Gulfport. A reception will follow at the Westside Community Center in Gulfport at 7:30 p.m.

Diamondhead Gardeners name committee chairmen

The Executive Board of the Diamondhead Garden Club met recently with the new president, Mrs. R.B. Boatright, presiding.

First vice-president Mrs. D.J. Keen outlined tentative plans for the coming year's programs, which will include a field trip and programs on dried flowers, terrariums and a plant auction. Mrs. Keen and Mrs. David Ludwig will be responsible for the Club Yearbook.

Mrs. Boatright's theme for her administration will be "Reach for Tomorrow Through Yesterday—Stressing Study and Preservation of all Wild Things That Are Our Heritage."

She announced the following as chairmen for the coming year: Arbor Day, Mrs. George Cassis; Auditor, Mrs.

Dix Ashman; Awards, Mrs. C.A. Evans; Beautification, Mrs. George Kollasch; Birds, Mrs. William Neff; Budget, Mrs. E. Teller.

Conservation, Mrs. William Temple; Flower Show, Mrs. Lee Peterson; Christmas Party, Mrs. Dix Ashman; Courtesy, Mrs. Paul Cutler; Energy and Environment Education, Mrs. J.H. Johnson; Garden of the Month and Best Maintained Business, Mrs. R.M. Figueroa and Mrs. George Kollasch.

Historian and Photography, Mrs. J.H. Feirich; Horticulture, Mrs. Harold Morris; Installation, Mrs. Joseph Finley; Junior Gardeners, Mrs. Lloyd Bell; Landscape Design, Mrs. Lester Page; and Mardi Gras, Mrs. Arno Leshing.

Membership, Mrs. W.H. Marshall; Memorial Gardens, Mrs. John Booth and Mrs. Hillaire Odgen; Parliamentary, Mrs. Joseph Finley; Pilgrimage, Mrs. Howard Mitchell and Mrs. Chris Arnos; and Publicity, Mrs. C.A. Evans.

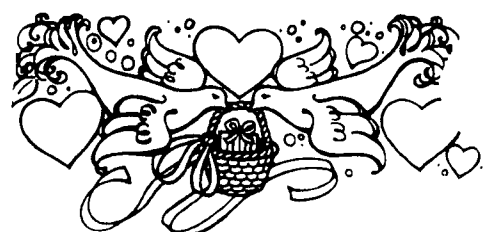

Roadsides, Mrs. Wayne Waddington; Telephone, Mrs. O.I. Thompson; Trees and Wildflowers, Mrs. W.J. Stansburg; Ways and Means, Mrs. Robert Wallace; World Gardening, Mrs. Hillaire Odgen; and Workshops, Mrs. Jan Brameyer.

The Garden Club plaque for the Best Maintained Business was given to Fairway Villa, and the Garden of the Month was awarded to Mr. and Mrs. George Kollasch. Important dates announced by the president were: July 18-19-20, Energy Workshops; September 21, Spanish Trail District Meeting at Richton; October 7, The Diamondhead Club will entertain the Gulf Coast Council; March 30, 1984 Diamondhead Pilgrimage; April 10-11-12, 1984 State Convention at Hattiesburg; April 13-14, 1984 Diamondhead Flower Show.

Mrs. Boatright announced that a new book had been added to the Club's Library—"Adventures in Birding" by Jean Platt.

The following were accepted as new members: Mesdames S. Bailey, M. Gemmell, H. Hickman, R. Simono, T. Thorpe, W. Wolf. Submitted by Mrs. Clarence A. Evans, Publicity Chairman.

Bay Legion Auxiliary captures state awards

MRS. PRESTON DAVID CLOYD

The 62nd convention of the American Legion and Auxiliary Department of Mississippi was held in Biloxi on July 8, 9 and 10. The auxiliary convention was called to order by the President Jeanette Ghetli. The first guest speakers who were introduced were Mrs. Walter Wild Andrews, national parliamentarian, and past national president, and Mrs. Doris Anderson, past national secretary.

Annual reports were made by the department officers and district presidents. The Bay St. Louis auxiliary received its first award from the Ninth District President Phyllis Moran, along with a battle star and ribbon for making their membership goal.

The local unit and post sponsored a hospitality room on Friday evening to present to the group Phyllis Moran, candidate for department chaplain and Clayton Thompson, candidate for southern area vice commander. The tables were set up buffet-style and more than 200 people were served.

On Saturday the day was started with the past president's Parley breakfast. Representing Bay St. Louis were three past unit Presidents Lou Wilkerson, Phyllis Moran and Evelyn Burns. Everyone attending received a Mississippi Reb pin.

When the convention reconvened the department poppy chairman introduced the new Miss Poppy for 1983-84. She was sponsored by the Laurel Unit 11.

Department chairmen began to make their reports and present their awards and Bay St. Louis walked off with 22 awards.

Rose Ann Thompson, Poppy chairman, received seven awards for the unit. Two first place posters were sent to the national competition. These posters were submitted by Mark Cornelius of St. Stanislaus High School and Billy Guice of Christ Episcopal School.

Our Poppy display which appeared in the TG&Y window in Bay St. Louis also won first place. The Poppy publicity book won another first place as did Mrs. Thompson's report which will compete at the national level.

The Poppy centerpiece won second place and the corsage won third place.

Ruby Hogan, membership chairman, won awards for membership in several different categories, including a trophy and a national citation for reaching goal before Oct. 25, 1982.

The auxiliary also received the department secretary's citation for the most renewals during the month of April and an award for doubling membership from 108 members in 1982 to 217 members.

Beth Burleson, junior activities chairman, took home three first place awards. Donna Moran, Junior Auxiliary, dressed the winning doll in the foreign relations contest. The juniors were selected first in the state for the report Mrs. Burleson turned in. Five juniors were presented to the convention in their uniforms, including Donna Moran 1982-83 president; Connie Moran 1983-84 president; Penny Boudin, unit secretary; Melissa Moran, treasurer; and Susan Moran 1982-83 Little Miss Poppy.

Donna Moran addressed the convention on Sunday and told of some of the projects of the unit. Jeanette Ghetli, department president, presented Donna with a plaque for the juniors' outstanding work.

The public relations book compiled by Mrs. Burleson and Lou Wilkerson won first place in Department and will now compete on the national level.

The legislative report by Chairman Lucille Bourdeaux received a national citation and a certificate from the Department.

Other certificates were awarded as follows: Field Service, Hazel Wohlschlegel, chairman; Constitution and

By-Laws, Lou Wilkerson, chairman; Past Presidents Parley, Rose Rutherford, chairman; Kidney Foundation Candy Sale, Irene Hille, chairman; Leadership Development, Phyllis Moran; and Foreign Relations, Beatrice Ladner, chairman.

On Saturday the election of officers was held and the following were elected: Marius Ladner, president; Jean Eady, first vice-president; Connie Shows, second vice-president; Gladys Bassett, historian.

Phyllis Moran of Bay St. Louis was elected Department Chaplain, and Jeanette Ghetli was National Executive Committee Woman.

Election was also held for delegates to represent Mississippi at the National Convention in Seattle next month. Of the nine elected, Lou Wilkerson and Phyllis Moran were included and Evelyn Burns is alternate.

Once again on Saturday evening the ladies held a Hospitality Room in honor of Clayton Thompson who was candidate for Southern Area Vice-Commander.

A joint memorial service was held on Sunday morning. After the service the ladies were addressed by the National Southern Division Vice-President Reva Laughlin after which she installed the incoming officers.

It was announced that the Mid-Winter Conference will be in Jackson in January and the convention will be held in Tupelo next July.

Submitted by Lou Wilkerson, public relations chairman.

Dinner-theater premier slated in Diamondhead

Diamondhead Little Theater premiere performance stars include, seated, Boyce Holleman and Mac Currid and standing, Shelley McCook and Robert Thompson

The Diamondhead Little Theater will open its first season August 10, 11 and 12 with a dinner-theater production of Sumner Long's play, "Never Too Late."

The stars currently in rehearsal include Boyce Holleman (Harry) and Mac Currid (Edith) as a middle-aged couple expecting a baby and Shelley McCook (Kate) and Robert Thompson (Charlie) as their daughter and son-in-law, respectively.

The cast also includes Sally Birdsong (Edith's good friend, Grace), Karl Stuart (Grace's husband and the doctor), Ed Scanlan (the Mayor), Buck Gamewell (the Policeman) and Bob Pflugfelder (the handyman, Mr. Foley).

The set is being built by Ed. Scanlan of Waveland who brings to the Diamondhead Little Theater some 25 years experience in stage design and construction.

He is also well-known on the Coast for his design and construction of floats for Mardi Gras, his assistance with The Waveland Players Productions, and his acting in numerous plays in the area.

"Never Too Late" is being directed by Julie Kraft of Diamondhead.

She is a graduate of St. Mary's Dominican College with a degree in theater arts and has starred in and directed numerous productions with playhouses in both New Orleans and Hollywood, Fla.

Diamondhead Country Club is site of the dinner production.

For reservations call 255-7702 or 255-1788. The doors open at 6:30 p.m., dinner is at 7 p.m. and the curtain is at 8:30 p.m.

ETV Brief

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC

The rain forests of Costa Rica are explored in "Rain Forest," a National Geographic Special scheduled to be rebroadcast at 8 p.m., Wednesday, Aug. 3 and at 10 p.m., Sunday, Aug. 7 on the Mississippi ETV Network. It was first seen on ETV earlier this year.

The rare sights deep within a tropical rain forest are captured on film by producers David and Carol Hughes. The world's rain forests occur now only in a narrow belt around the Equator, blanketing some three million square miles of the earth's tropics.

The documentary focuses on the forests of Costa Rica, lush and densely foliated and teeming with creatures whose beauty and variety are hard to imagine.

There, heavy rainfall—well over 100 inches annually—creates an environment of dense vegetation that is home to some of the world's most unusual life forms.

A poison-arrow frog begins his compelling mating song. Later, the female will carry the tiny newborn tadpoles on her back to a pool of water, where she will release them to mature.

Many rain forest creatures have survived by developing extraordinary specialties. Perhaps the most startling and captivating of these is the basilisk lizard, which creates such momentum with its rapidly churning legs that it can actually run across water. This lizard's 'high-speed run over a rain-forest stream is a highlight of the film.

New Testament

Is any sick among you? let him call for the elders of the church; and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord:

And the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up; and if he have committed sins, they shall be forgiven him.

MASS SCHEDULE
Sunday, 7 and 9 a.m. and 6 p.m.
Daily, Monday through Saturday, 6:30 a.m.
Saturday (Vigil) 8 p.m.
Mother of Perpetual Help Novena at beginning of Tuesday mass.
Confessions are heard half hour before weekend masses and upon request.

"Now may the Lord of peace himself give you peace at all times and in every way. The Lord be with all of you."
—(II Thessalonians 3:16)

Did you ever feel like the words 'peace and tranquility' were words coined in a fairy tale somewhere in a land far away and long, long ago?

With deadlines, inflation, traffic jams, bill collectors, fast food lifestyles, in this hurry up, get-it done-yesterday world, the writer of these words couldn't possibly have any meaning for us today. Or could he?

Someone once said, "Times seldom change, people never." You see, if you and I lived back in the first century as these Thessalonians did, chances are we would find reasons to be anxious, nervous, busy etc....You see TV dinners were not available, neither was good hospital care, and all of the luxuries that free up so much of our time so that we can enjoy quiet times.

So often, in the gospels, we read about Jesus our Savior, our Lord, and our supreme example of how we ought to live and behave in this world. And have you ever noticed what Jesus did when the crowds got too big, and were demanding too much, and the Pharisees were breathing down his neck?

"That day when the evening came, he said to his disciples, 'Let's go over to the other side.' Leaving the crowd behind...." (Mark 4:35,36) Did you catch that?

Jesus the Son of God, the Messiah himself could not work forever while in the flesh without getting away from the maddening crowds. Yes, even when there was still many miracles that could be performed and many good works to do. You see at some point you've got to say "Let's go to the other side and leave the crowd behind!"

But you say there are not enough hours in the day to get away by myself and have a quiet time with myself and the Lord. Notice what Jesus did when the busy world wouldn't give him time during the day.

"Very early in the morning, while it was still dark, Jesus got up, left the house and went off to a solitary place, where he prayed." (Mark 1:35)

Peace and tranquility is available any time of the day or night. Its only a prayer away!

Parish News

By FR. B. C. KELLER

Like Abraham, we can ask God for what we need because we know he is eager to give it to us. We are his children, raised to divine life through faith and baptism.

Our parish council elected Margaret Hicks to fill the unexpired term of Boston Edmondson to captain Zone A in our parish. Thanks, Boston, for the work you have done in this area until now.

The council decided to hold its second annual pot luck dinner at the Seminary Gym on Saturday, Aug. 20, the eve of our Parish Feast. Special honorees this year will be the senior citizens of our parish.

A special mass will be held in church the next day at 9 a.m. to honor our silver jubilee, Sister Lauren Diel. The family picnic and games will be on the school grounds that afternoon under the leadership of Saunders Bell.

It was also decided to have Xavier Concert Choir return for our Fall Musical. Lonnie Bradley volunteered and was accepted by the council as the parish correspondent for the new diocesan newspaper, Gulf Pine Catholic, to begin publication on Sept. 8.

On Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. the Gospel Choir will practice.

Our tutoring program in Math and Reading will continue the next three weeks, Monday through Friday, from 9:30 until 11:30 a.m. at our school. We are most grateful to Mrs. Zettie Farve, Miss Clementine Williams and Mrs. Marilyn Williams for giving of their time to help these youngsters.

This Thursday at 8 p.m. parishioners are invited to attend a Mass Rally at Mount Bethel Baptist Church in Gulfport (2100 30th Avenue). An effort is being made to raise funds for a bus trip to Washington for the 20th anniversary of the March on Washington. Scheduled to appear are Andrew Young (or representative), Dick Gregory, Martin Luther King III, Walter Fauntroy, Dr. Joseph Lowery and Rev. Clellus Robinson.

This Friday at 7:30 p.m. the following community organizations will meet in our cafeteria to discuss next week's election candidates: Concerned Citizens of Hancock County, Local Chapter of N.A.A.C.P., Southern Christian Leadership Conference and Veterans Civic Association.

Genetic engineering technology could impact civilization more than industrial revolution

Sure enough, science fiction movie buffs who have lately proven a lusty appetite for special effects and a galaxy of vile, odd-looking monsters would love it!

The thriller could begin in a research laboratory where biochemists are using gene splicing to program bacteria to produce human growth hormone. The make-believe characters are microscopic, one-celled organisms that wriggle around their petri plates and reproduce rapidly.

In a matter of hours the tiny organisms divide, and become millions, then millions become billions and billions become trillions.

Then one dark night, something goes haywire. The hormone the bacteria are producing causes them to grow. They swell into rat-sized "superbugs" that swarm over everything in the research lab and soon find their way to the outside.

By morning, they have wriggled their way down streets and sidewalks to infest entire neighborhoods. They can't be stopped! Antibiotics that were used to kill them when they were tiny organisms are useless against their increased bulk.

Alas, movie-goers, this is just a fantasy; but to many who have been reading and hearing of the miracles scientists are performing using genetic engineering, this fantasy mirrors their fears toward a revolutionary — and poorly understood — technology.

"The general public has a poor idea of what genetic engineering is and what can be accomplished with this new technology," said Dr. Warren Feld, professor of health care administration at The University of Mississippi. "Some individuals are afraid that scientists are going to create Frankensteins or bacteria that will wipe us out."

Others are too optimistic and think that much more can be accomplished today than will probably be accomplished in their lifetime.

The public needs to be educated about genetic engineering, he said, adding that there are other groups that "need to sit down and discuss the social, scientific and ethical implications" of this new technology.

Genetic engineering encompasses several techniques that can be used to change the genetic makeup of organisms — whether they be agricultural crops, humans or bacteria. One technique involves the transfer of genes from one organism to another. Genentech, a California-based firm, has used this technique to insert human growth hormone genes into bacteria in such a way that the bacteria synthesize the hormone.

Potential uses for this synthetically-produced growth hormone include treatment of shortness associated with dwarfism, juvenile rheumatoid arthritis and Turner's syndrome; healing of wounds, burns, bone fractures and cartilage damage; and treatment of osteoporosis.

Other techniques, such as gene therapy and genetic screening, can be used to track the cause of disease and to correct many of nature's blunders.

New methods for examining chromosomes are providing procedures to screen newborns for metabolism errors like PKU, hyperthyroidism and Tay Sachs disease.

These same methods have shown that many, possibly even all, cancer cells contain chromosomal defects; and learning to manipulate cancer-control genes may some day provide the means for treating cancer effectively.

How should health care professionals, policy makers and the general public react to this rapidly developing technology?

"Right now, the public is fearful and enthusiastic — and both to the extreme," Dr. Feld said. "First we need to understand what genetic engineering is, what it can do and what it can't do. I don't think the public has to worry about geneticists creating Frankensteins or super bugs. Our laboratories are well set up and have good control systems.

There might be danger, in theory, of creating bacteria that are dangerous, but unless someone wants to create 'bad' bugs, I don't think there is any great threat."

Pharmaceutical companies have developed several products which are ready to be released and put on the market, but all will require many more tests before they are proven safe and effective and made available to the general public, he said.

"Scientists are a long way from creating life. They can alter life and growth and can create insulin and blood products, but there is a big difference between what is being done in the research laboratories and mass producing the products and distributing them to the general public."

Dr. Feld said that biomedical engineers are paving the way for tools and products that can be used to make heredity less limiting. Human growth hormone is an example.

"Genetic engineering can provide us with control over life, health and a lot of negative conditions like dwarfism, mental retardation and others. And when we can begin to control individual health — who's healthy and who's not and how people live — we are opening a lot of doors to political and social dangers and abuse."

"Few people are concerned about these issues," he said. "The companies that are manufacturing these new products say they can't be concerned with what happens to them after they are marketed."

They just assume that hospitals will adapt and that the system used to distribute other pharmaceuticals can be used to distribute genetic engineering products and services.

But if hospitals can't adapt to using simpler technologies, how will they adapt to something like genetic engineering? A lot of simpler technologies are often abused... patients are given drugs or x-rays when they don't really need them. If we can't prevent abuse at a simple level, then how can we prevent it on a more technical level?

"We need more government oversight of this new technology because it has the potential for such change in society and in the public's health," Dr. Feld said. "There is very little government oversight."

Genetic engineering technology could have a greater impact on civilization than the agricultural and industrial revolutions, he said. "With the potential for that much change, more research with a long-term view is needed today."

Farm couples to study business improvement

Twenty-five of the state's outstanding young farm couples will meet in Louisville July 27-29 to study methods of improving their farm businesses through better understanding and use of farm cooperatives.

The farm couples and cooperative leaders from throughout Mississippi will meet at Lake Tiak-O'Khata for the 5th annual Co-op Couples conference.

"A goal of the conference is for these young farm couples and the co-op leaders to share ideas and fellowship together," said Dickie R. Rayborn, president of the Southwest Mississippi Production Credit Association and chairman of the conference planning committee.

"This involvement should give all concerned a better understanding of how cooperatives serve the farming community under tough economic conditions."

Young couples are nominated to attend by members of the Mississippi Council of Farmer Cooperatives. Farmers must be 36 years of age or younger, be actively engaged in farming, and be a member of a cooperative. A committee on the council makes the final selection of couples.

Host couples for the conference include Noland and Linda Rayborn from Walthall County and Park and Sharon Neff from Washington County.

Couples attending include: Hugh and Linda Arant, Leflore County; Don and Suzanne Honea, Pike; Brad and Barbara Bennett, Alcorn; T.C. and Key Britt, Leflore; Charlie and Pat Rowland, Archie and Angie Edgar, Yazoo; Henry and Sharon Frasier, Leflore; Glenn and Patricia Brock, Holmes;

MISSISSIPPI AG-REFLECTIONS

PAST

Indians using stick agriculture were Mississippi's first known farmers. The first European colony, built on the eastern shore of Biloxi Bay and led by a Frenchman, Pierre LeMoyne d'Iberville, was established in 1699. Natchez was then built as an outpost by D'Iberville's younger brother Bienville in 1716. By 1817 a 30.5 million acre state was formed from this vast area of forest, prairie and swampland. Some 30,000 Indians and 700 Europeans began to convert that first forest into cropland, pasture and cities.

PRESENT

Today, Mississippi has expanded the tiny Biloxi farming community that produced Indian tobacco, rice, cotton, cattle, lumber, pitch and tar into six million acres of cropland, and four million acres of pastures. The state is now cutting its third forest off 16.6 million acres of timberland. Cotton, cattle, rice and timber continue to be important crops, but added to that list is soybeans, wheat and catfish. All these commodities have joined the Mississippi crop scene within the last 50 years.

Early insect invasions plaguing state crops

A combination of crop production and environmental factors is giving state farmers one of their worst early battles with crop insects in years.

The factors are combining to dramatically boost numbers of many insect pests in major crops in the state, according to Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service insect control specialists.

Pests such as boll weevils and stink bugs have turned up in high numbers in Mississippi crops, including cotton, corn, grain sorghum and vegetable crops.

The insects damage the crops and reduce yields by sucking plant juices, eating plant parts or causing other damage that affects crop production.

Dr. Bob Head, an entomologist with the Extension Service, said high numbers of overwintered boll weevils which survived the mild winter set the stage for current insect problems in cotton crops.

"Overwintered boll weevil populations were the highest in 10 to 15 years," Head said. "They were at least 10 times higher than in 1962."

Producers generally have done a good job in controlling the pests thus far, according to Head, but serious problems are expected later in July and August.

"With the late crop this year, producers can expect insect problems later than normal," Head added. "Treatment will be required well into September."

Head also said other crop pests may build later in cotton crops, including bollworms and budworms, plant bugs and fall armyworms.

Many of the current insect problems are being influenced by weather and other problems affecting crops, said Dr. Roy Reid, Extension area pest management specialist at Stoneville in the Delta.

Reid said late planting and development for major crops combined with low temperatures which set crops back early were major factors in encouraging the insect outbreak.

Large amounts of cropland idled by the government's payment-in-kind program are complicating the insect problem by providing wild host plants on which the insects thrive, Reid said.

"Plant bugs and flea hoppers are in high numbers on wild hosts on idled crop acreage," Reid said. "As these wild hosts mature or are plowed down, the insects are moving to cotton."

Reid said much of the soybean acreage in the Delta was planted late, and these crops usually have more problems with insects such as loopers, podworms and other insects.

Much of the grain sorghum acreage in the Delta also is late. Late crops are more susceptible to insects such as the sorghum midge, armyworms and head worms.

Soybeans are Mississippi's largest crop in acreage, with 3.1 million acres seeded in 1963. About 720,000 acres of cotton, 300,000 acres of grain sorghum, and 160,000 acres of rice were planted this spring.

Boll weevils also are plaguing cotton growers in north Mississippi where record numbers of the pests have been captured in trapping devices.

Dr. Mike Williams, Extension pest management specialist in north Mississippi at Pontotoc, said cotton crops are later this year than in recent memory, which has intensified insect problems.

"This has been the year of the boll weevil in north Mississippi," Williams said. "Almost all cotton farmers have had to spray for overwintered boll weevils."

Plant bugs are also numerous in north Mississippi cotton and early insecticide applications have been made to control the insects.

Another pest—stink bugs—has been reported in extremely high numbers in south Mississippi crops. The insects have moved from wheat to more desirable crops as wheat was harvested.

"High numbers of stink bugs have attacked grain sorghum, corn, watermelons and tomatoes," said Dr. Jim Hamer, Extension pest management specialist. "Soybeans also were damaged, but less than other crops."

Hamer said the stink bugs appear to be reproducing in corn crops and levels reached as high as 14 insects per ear of corn on some crops.

Across the state, Hamer described insect activity in soybeans as low, but building. Cutworms, bean leaf beetles and three-cornered alfalfa hoppers are in low to moderate infestations.

Point of Law

(Prepared by the Mississippi State Bar. Some legal rights may vary from locality to locality. Always consult an attorney when in doubt about your rights.)

Q: Recently bad weather has caused some damage to the property I am renting. So far, my landlord has not begun repairs. I assume he must repair his property. Am I right, or is there a loophole someplace?

A: In Mississippi the landlord has a duty to repair rental property in particular circumstances. If he has already agreed to begin repairs then he has a duty to do so. In addition, a landlord must repair any "common areas" used by all tenants, such as hallways, stairways and lobbies.

If you have not asked your landlord to begin repairs do so at once. Also, review your lease and see what it may say about the matter of repairs. By the way, a lease may contain a provision which states that the landlord is not liable for any injuries caused to a tenant, his family or his guest by the landlord's failure to repair the leased property.

Such a clause is not effective if the property is being leased for residential purpose. A landlord cannot avoid his liability in this manner.

Q: Can a landlord raise my rent whenever he wants? There's talk about raising my rent and I can't afford it.

A: As is so often the case when trying to answer a question about the law, we answer you generally that "it depends." In this instance, it depends on the type of agreement you have with your landlord.

In a month-to-month tenancy, stability in the amount of rent may exist only on a monthly basis. If this is the arrangement you have then your landlord may raise the rent next month.

In a year's lease, the landlord cannot raise the rent for a 12-month term. Of course, there are exceptions.

If the landlord wants to raise the rent during the lease period, he or she must give the tenant something in return, like a new contract. You have some negotiating power when this happens.

The landlord may also have an "escalator" clause in the lease. This provides that if the landlord's cost suddenly increased dramatically, for example for heating and cooling because of fuel prices, the landlord has the right to demand higher rent.

Review your lease. And next time, read your lease very closely before signing.

SCREENING ROOM ONLY

By David H. Jones

CRITICISMS

The following article has been rated R by the Motion Picture Columnists of America. This means that the article contains mature subject matter and parental discretion is advised. The Sea Coast Echo will run this article only when absolutely necessary.

Earlier this month I mentioned that Home Box Office (HBO) had a very weak lineup during July. At a second look, I found their lineup not so weak but it also contains some of the most hateful films ever made. I'm speaking of "Friday the 13th: Part II" and "III," "Humongous" and "Death Wish II," films that reek of vicious insensitivity.

The "Friday the 13th" movies are all simply set, simply directed scenarios for a continuous barrage of murders carried out in grisly fashion.

One by one the over-sexed teenagers on a weekend campout are slaughtered. None of the murders are committed artfully, or to heighten tension or even to build upon the already sparse story; it's only a series of gruesome atrocities ranging from ax murders to beheadings to hangings.

In "Friday the 13th Part III," filmed in 3D no less, a head is squeezed until an eyeball pops from the skull toward the camera and audience. Is that entertainment?!

"Humongous" begins at its own dizzying, nauseating pace. Before the opening credits roll, we witness a violent rape, a dog attack in which a man's leg and face are nearly torn off, and then, if all this wasn't enough, a woman finishes the mortally wounded guy off by bashing his head with a rock!

From this sickening beginning, "Humongous" proceeds downhill as it follows the successful "Friday the 13th" formula, i.e. many more fresh-faced, sexually energetic teenagers meeting the evil that can't be stopped.

And then the worst, most realistic film of this moron-minded schlock, "Death Wish II."

Starring Charles Bronson, again, as the common citizen forced to report to vigilante tactics after his housekeeper and daughter are raped and killed.

In an almost frame by frame remake of the original, "Death Wish II" allows itself to wallow in sadomasochistic behavior, violent rape and violent murder, especially the tire iron variety.

Its next murder is never more than a few minutes away. And it seems to encourage the concept of someone "taking the law into their own hands" with its final ambiguous scene.

I guess the real question is why are such movies being made? And, also, why is it that we can't seem to get enough of this horrific overkill? Why do people line up once, twice, three times to see a "Friday the 13th" movie and all its sequels?

For the intelligent moviegoer there is no answer. When films like "My Dinner With Andre," "The Year of Living Dangerously" or "Tender Mercies," all of which were filled with warmth, love and compassion, are attended by only a meager few while the gore films next door are shown to a packed auditorium the answer is plain to the producers and production companies.

And, after the usual run of theaters and drive-ins, it's inevitable that these poor excuses for entertainment are bound to show up on the television.

If you have impressionable children around your house don't allow them to watch any of the "horror" films listed above. These films are hard enough for an adult to take.

Geez, after seeing these "Porky's II" doesn't sound that bad at all. Just kidding, of course.

Thanks to you...
it works...

Extension marketing specialist lists protein varieties, sources

By Ann O. Rushing
Marketing Specialist

Meat, poultry, fish, and eggs claim about one-third of the average family food dollar. They pay heavy returns in terms of nutrients provided.

From this food group we received about one-fifth of our total food energy, more than two-fifths of our protein, one-third of our iron and fat, and one-fourth to one-half of other needed vitamins and minerals except vitamins C and A.

For variety and economy, other foods are also good sources of protein. Some of these are of vegetable origin: dry beans, nuts, and peanut butter. Bread and other grain products, such as pasta and rice, also provide vegetable protein.

Dairy products provide about one-fifth the protein and almost three-fourths the calcium in American diets. While cheese is the dairy product most often used as a main dish, other dairy products are rich sources of protein, calcium, other minerals, and vitamins.

Protein is only one of 17 nutrients for which recommended daily allowances are established by the national Academy of Science. An adequate daily intake is important to growth and maintenance of body cells and functions. However, consuming more proteins than needed is expensive.

How much protein is enough varies with age and sex. To get the picture requires a bit of concentration on figures. Children need 23 to 34 milligrams per day, one-half to three-fourths of the 56 milligrams that teen-age or adult males need.

Teen-age and adult females need 44 to 46 milligrams of protein daily. Protein needs may be almost doubled during periods of body stress, such as pregnancy, lactation, and recuperation from illness.

Twenty grams of protein provide a bit more than one-third the daily needs of healthy teen-age and adult males, almost one-half the needs of adult females, and at least two-thirds the need of children.

This much protein is provided by any of the following: two and one-half cups milk, a large pork chop or chicken breast, three frankfurters, or three-to-four ounce serving of ham, tuna, ground beef, cooked beef or pork, chicken or turkey.

On this basis it can be assumed that two three-ounce servings of meat or meat alternative plus needed milk products should provide daily protein needs.

Commonly used foods that provide protein less expensively than meat, poultry, and fish include several vegetables, some cereals, and eggs. This group of foods, with the exception of cheese and eggs, are classed as incomplete proteins.

This is because animal proteins contain the known essential amino acids, and soybeans contain most of them.

Cereals and other vegetable proteins contain several, but not all of them. When incomplete proteins are served with animal proteins, the animal proteins improve the quality of vegetable or cereal protein.

Examples include meat, cheese, or eggs in combination dishes with rice, pasta, or beans; or milk with meals in which cereals or beans are served.

Pasturized process cheese is the same high-quality product, whether secured through the USDA program or purchased in grocery stores. The chief difference is need for storing the amount that cannot be used within a week or two. This same problem is faced by most families at some time.

Process cheese, tightly wrapped, keeps well in refrigerator storage for at least a couple of weeks. If surfaces are left uncovered, they become dry and often become trimming waste.

Even when closely wrapped, cheese molds in the refrigerator. This is also wasteful, since mold must be trimmed away, about one-half inch below mold damage.

While interior mold is a natural and desirable quality of such cheeses as Blue and Roquefort, it is not desirable in Cheddar types.

Molding of process cheese that must be stored for long periods can be prevented by two methods, each having at least one disadvantage. Large blocks may be cut into smaller pieces and cut surfaces coated with melted paraffin. This method is time consuming, and flammability of paraffin makes care necessary.

Process cheese may be frozen to prevent flavor changes and molding. This requires freezer space and moisture-resistant packaging. Freezing causes a change in texture though there are ways to reduce the mealy, crumbly texture caused by freezing.

To freeze cheese with the least possible texture damage, cut it into pieces that weigh no more than a pound and are no more than one inch thick.

Wrap it closely with heavy-duty foil, freezer-type paper, or plastic wrap and place it in the fastest freezing area of your refrigerator or freezer.

To further reduce texture change, thaw it slowly, preferably overnight in the refrigerator.

For best quality, use cheese from a home freezer within six months after storage. Use it within three months after storage in the freezer compartment of a home refrigerator.

REAL VIEWS ON REAL ESTATE

NOT ALL CONDOS ARE HOMES

QUESTION: A new office building is being constructed in our city and I understand that it is to be a condominium. I thought all condominiums were homes. Would you please explain? C. W. Jackson

ANSWER: Dear C.W.: A condominium is a form of property ownership which involves a separation of property into individual ownership elements and common ownership elements.

Condominium refers to a legal form of ownership and not to a specific land use.

Many readers may associate the term solely with residential housing. While residential housing is in the condominium form of ownership, commercial, industrial and mixed land uses are also being structured as condominiums.

As you may know, the buyer of a condominium acquires property rights to a specific space and to common property.

The deed to a townhouse condominium, for example, describes the space occupied by the dwelling unit.

The owner has the right to occupy, rent or sell that space. Owners can also leave these rights to an heir.

Currently, some developers of office complexes are offering condominium ownership of office space and some owners of grain elevators are offering property rights to storage space.

Farmers can acquire the right to a specific volume of storage by buying into a condominium.

In Baltimore, Md., an investor purchased a commercial parking garage and converted the individual parking spaces into a condominium form of ownership.

By purchasing a specific space and paying an annual maintenance fee, a person has the right to use the space and actually has legal title to the space.

No doubt as land cost and construction costs continue to increase, the condominium form of ownership will continue to grow.

For answers to your questions, write Dr. Dennis Tosh, P. O. Box 295, University, MS 38677.

Hospital to offer childbirth classes

Registration is still open for a childbirth education class, sponsored by Hancock General Hospital and scheduled to begin sometime in August.

The class, which will run weekly for six weeks, will be held in the classroom in the metal building to the rear of the hospital.

"The course will include discussion and education on such topics as exercising during your pregnancy, what to expect from your pregnancy, nutrition, labor and delivery," said Belinda Durbin, staff development director at Hancock General.

"It is not necessary for those attending to plan to deliver at this hospital," she continued. "It is open to the public and is ideally suited for expectant mothers six to seven months pregnant."

Registration for the class will be held until Monday, August 1, and a minimum of seven participants are necessary to hold the class. Those attending must bring along a spouse, relative or friend as a coach. Fee for the course is $30.

Interested persons are asked to contact Durbin at 476-9081, extension 183; or Vicky Staehle, extension 185.

Point of Law

(Prepared by the Mississippi State Bar. Some legal rights may vary from locality to locality. Always consult an attorney when in doubt about your rights.)

Q: What are a lawyer's obligations?

A: All lawyers promise when they enter the practice of law to uphold the law and to be guided by the rules of ethics adopted by the Mississippi Supreme Court, known as the Code of Professional Responsibility. The first basic principle of the professional responsibility of lawyers is that every person in our society should have ready access to the independent professional services of a lawyer of integrity and competence.

The legal profession should assist citizens to recognize legal problems because such problems are often not timely noticed. Therefore, lawyers should encourage and participate in educational and public relations programs concerning our legal system with particular reference to legal programs that frequently arise.

In some instances a lawyer confines his practice to a particular field of law. A lawyer should not be permitted to hold himself out as a specialist or as having special training or ability, other than in the historically excepted fields of admiralty, trademark and patent law.

However, lawyers are human. Some are more competent than others. Sometimes a lawyer makes mistake. However, a mistake or error in judgement is not unethical conduct. A lawyer may be disciplined only for violating the standards of professional conduct.

Q: My parents and I each had a one-third interest in a tract of land. We conveyed our interest to a partnership call- ed Jones Building Company, in which we were the only partners.

Then Dad read a book on how to avoid probate and conveyed his interest in the land to a trust and signed the trust agreement: John Jones. My neighbor says you cannot convey partnership property like that. Is this the law?

A: Mississippi law provides that where title to real property is in the name of partnership, a conveyance of this property by a partner, in his own name, is sufficient to transfer the partnership property unless the partner so acting had no authority to convey this partnership land and the person with whom he is dealing had knowledge of the fact that he was without authority to act.

Q: My husband moved out of our house in 1980, leaving me and the children. We have not heard from him since, though I know through relatives where he is.

I am moving to Louisiana to take a better job and must sell the house. A friend told me that my husband has to sign the deed conveying the house. Is this true?

A: If the deed to the house conveyed title to you and your husband, he must sign the deed conveying the house. If, however, the house is in your name alone, there is a possibility that you may not be required to obtain his signature, although Mississippi law provides that neither a husband nor a wife may sell or encumber their homestead without the other party's signature. This law has been held to have an exception, and that is in situations, like yours, where a party whose name does not appear on the deed, but is married to the person living in the home, has abandoned his homestead, voluntarily, and failed to maintain the marital relationship with the other party.

Q: What happens if a person dies without a will?

A: If someone dies without a will (in legal terms dies "intestate"), the property will go to the heirs as tenants in common. This means that each heir will own an undivided interest in each item of property in the estate rather than each owning a special item of property as set forth in a will. Land, bank accounts and cars are all treated as equal and are valued accordingly.

Of course, the heirs may agree to divide the property in whatever manner they choose once it is theirs. However, this requires a degree of cooperation that is often missing in these situations. If they cannot agree on a fair division, the heirs may turn to the court to partition it among them. If the court feels that it cannot fairly divide the property into individual shares, it will order the property sold and the proceeds divided among the heirs.

If the deceased leaves instructions about the property in any form other than a will these instructions have no legal effect. So, if you want your daughter to have the china and your son to have the guns, it can only be assured with a will.

Q: What happens to property owned by "joint tenants?"

A: In such a case, the deed or bank account will have language to the effect that they own "...as joint tenants with full rights of survivorship..." or similar language. This means that when the first one dies his or her property goes to the other, and does not go by a will.

Diamondhead couple wins Master Points

Walt and Marian Schlossman of 5504 Hana Court, Diamondhead, were Master Point winners at the recent 1983 North American Summer Championships of the American Contract Bridge League in New Orleans, La. They won first overall in a two-session game in which 216 players competed.

The event was among six North American Championships, 42 lesser title races, and other events which drew thousands of players. Players of every skill compete in three major tournaments sponsored each year by the ACBL.

Master points are based on the number of participants and caliber of competition at an event; they are awarded to winners in all sections. The ACBL is a non-profit organization of some 200,000 tournament bridge players in the United States, Canada, Mexico and Bermuda.

ACBL conducts 300 tournaments a year and 4,400 clubs provide weekly games throughout the continent. Those present will be able to gain an insight into the satellite solution to surveying.

Pittman's office is hosting the conference in coordination with other federal and state agencies. The meeting will be held in the First Floor Auditorium of the Woolfolk State Office Building and is open to all engineers, surveyors and those with a special interest in upgrading the quality of survey in the state.

Pittman noted the conference is a first step to upgrading the accuracy and efficiency of surveying in the state and that plans include modernizing the Public Lands Division of his office to provide local governments, engineers and surveyors with survey data expeditiously with the ultimate results of reduced expenses and less time consumed by all who utilize those services.

Secretary of State Edwin Lloyd Pittman expects engineers and surveyors from throughout the state will gather in Jackson Wednesday and Thursday for a seminar on the State Plane Coordinate System of Survey and a demonstration of the Global Positioning System utilizing satellites.

Captain John D. Bossler, chief, National Geodetic Survey, Washington, D.C., will spearhead the conference utilizing members of his staff to provide an overview of the conduct of surveying in the future utilizing 18 satellites within the Global Positioning System.

His demonstration team will utilize the satellites through their sophisticated equipment and computers in an application that depicts the accuracy obtainable.

Those present will be able to gain an insight into the satellite solution to surveying.

Poisoning warning issued for canners

Although many people approach home canning as a hobby, the department of agriculture hopes enthusiasts will not overlook the poisoning danger involved.

New research has shown the "traditional" method of canning certain garden favorites, such as tomatoes, could lead to deadly levels of botulin toxin.

Nelda Starks, a nutrition specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, said that safe canning of both fruits and vegetables requires almost twice as much time as previously thought.

Starks also says that USDA deems the problem serious enough to revise its home canning and freezing guide.

This new bulletin points out the dangers of the traditional method of canning and outlines the necessary revisions. New research, revealed in this bulletin, shows that merely packing raw tomatoes into jars and processing them in boiling water may allow a low vacuum pressure and a poor seal. Either of these two factors is a proven link to botulin development.

Instead, the revised guide advises raw tomatoes be peeled and quartered before being brought to a boil. These boiled tomatoes should then be placed into hot glass jars and processed in a water bath canner. Pint containers should be processed for 35 minutes; quarts for 45 minutes.

The revised edition of the home canning and freezing guide is available for $2.50 from the consumer information service in Pueblo, Colo. The Hancock County Home Economist also has more information.

Kiwifruit Searches for Identity

The kiwi fruit is having an identity crisis.

Those unfamiliar with the fascinating fruits sometimes call them, "furry little brown things." One shopper thought they were fuzzy potatoes. Another thought they were moldy and tossed them out.

Kiwi fruit is a newcomer to the U.S. fruit market, and growers are anxious to improve its image. Originally known as Chinese gooseberry, kiwi fruit is a native of the Yangtze Valley in central China.

New Zealanders, however, were the first to realize its commercial value shortly after World War II. They adopted the fruit and named it after their native kiwi, a flightless bird with grayish-brown hairlike plumage.

Beneath that unappealing exterior, however, is bright emerald green flesh with a creamy white core. When the fruit is fully ripe, the taste is suggestive of bananas with a dash of watermelon and strawberries.

During the 1960's, U. S. Department of Agriculture scientists developed methods for cultivating the fruit in the United States, and growers were encouraged to experiment with new plantings. Two growers imported several thousand plants from New Zealand to establish the first kiwi fruit vineyards. Today, kiwi fruit has come of age in California.

The kiwi fruit is a low calorie, nutritious food. One kiwi fruit has fewer calories, only 52, but twice the vitamin C of an orange.

When selecting kiwi fruit, look for those that are firm to the touch. To prevent further ripening, kiwi fruit can be stored in a plastic bag in the refrigerator for several weeks.

Except for the peel, the entire fruit is edible. Kiwi fruit should be peeled and can be eaten raw or cooked.

Kiwi fruit is a very versatile food. Use it in open-faced sandwiches, snacks, fruit salads, desserts, yogurt, green salads, or scooped right out of the peel with a spoon.

An average kiwi fruit yields one-half cup diced or sliced fruit. It makes two to four servings.

KIWI AND CREAM

IN MERINGUE CUPS
2 egg whites
1/4 teaspoon vinegar
1/8 teaspoon vanilla extract
Dash of salt
2/3 cup sugar
1 cup whipping cream
1/4 cup powdered sugar
2 to 3 kiwis; peeled and thinly sliced

Combine egg whites (at room temperature), vinegar, vanilla and salt; beat until frothy. Gradually add sugar, 1 tablespoon at a time, beating until stiff peaks form. (Do not underbeat the mixture.)

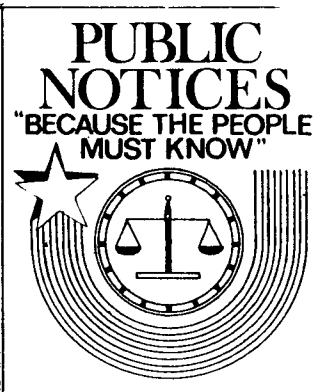

Spoon meringue into 4 equal portions on unglazed brown paper. (Do not use recycled paper). Using back of spoon, shape meringue into circles about 4 inches in diameter; shape each circle into a shell (sides should be about 1 1/2 inches high). Bake at 300 degrees for 45 minutes. Cool away from drafts.

KIWI FRUIT INDONESIA

2 Kiwi fruits, peeled and sliced
2 cups of any combination of the following fruits or fruits in season:

Bananas, peeled and sliced
Melon, peeled and sliced
Strawberries, sliced
Coconut Sauce
1 1/2 cup coconut milk, canned or frozen
2 eggs, well beaten
1/4 cup dark brown sugar, packed
2 tablespoons grated lemon peel
2 tablespoons rum or brandy (optional)
Mix all ingredients except rum or brandy in the top of a double boiler. Cook over hot water until sauce thickens, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and add rum or brandy. Pour over fruit and mix very carefully to avoid breaking fruit. Sauce may be made ahead and served over cold fruit. Serves 6.
